TREASURY LISTS HUGE INCREASES IN MANY ITEMS

Senate Finance Committee May Boost House Fund By 800 Millions

GASOLINE, BEER HIGHER

Automobiles, Cigarettes May See Rates Up; Changes In Income Exemptions Sure

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—The Senate Finance Committee today studied suggestions of some members that the record-breaking new tax bill be boosted to $4,000,000,000, as the treasury submitted possible new taxes to yield approximately $800,000,000.

The committee, chiefly by slashing individual income tax exemptions, has raised the total of the bill to $3,608,000,000 with many vital sections still to be finally acted on. The bill was estimated to yield $3,236,700,000 as it passed the House.

"There is considerable talk of increasing the total of the bill, but I do not know whether it will be done," said Sen. La Follette (R) Wis. "There is general recognition that it is inadequate to meet the financial situation of the government."

"The bill may be increased, but I doubt if it will be much more than $3,500,000,000," said Sen. Connally (D) Tex.

Suggestions Voiced
Taxes suggested by the treasury in event the committee decided to raise the total included:

Lowering exemptions to yield $303,000,000, which has been adopted.

Special community property state rule, $48,300,000, adopted in principle.

Increase estate and gift taxes either $123,900,000 or $195,000,000, rejected.

Gasoline, one cent a gallon additional tax $255,000,000. The committee has rejected a one-half cent increase.

Beer, $6.00 to $7.00 per barrel, $52,800,000, to be acted on.

MOSCOW—The official Soviet radio reported today that General Von Rundstedt, commander of the southern German army driving against the Ukraine, has been killed. The Russian broadcast said it was rumored Von Rundstedt was murdered by a German officer and that a number of arrests have been made.

CANBERRA, Australia—Parties supporting the government of Prime Minister R. G. Menzies today rejected a demand by the Labor party that the cabinet resign. As a result of this decision, the Menzies government will remain in office.

SHANGHAI—Major Kunio Akiyama, Japanese army spokesman, today denied reports that Japan intends to blockade Shanghai's international settlement or the French concession. He also denied reports that Japanese troops intend to occupy foreign areas of the city by force of arms.

VICHY—Diplomatic sources in Vichy reported today that formal negotiations are under way for cessation of hostilities in Iran. Shah Riza Khan Pahlavi was reported to have informed the British and Russian ministers at Tehran that he was agreeable to a "provisionary, friendly occupation" of his country.

MOSCOW—Four more German divisions have arrived on the Greco-Turkish frontier, Istanbul reports received in Moscow said today.

Opening of Supply Route Seen in Iran Attack

OPENING of a new line of supply from the United States to the British Middle East and to Russia is seen if the Anglo-Soviet invasion of Iran succeeds. Allied control of the country would make it possible for American supplies to be shipped across the Persian Gulf, the Indian Ocean and the Persian Gulf rather than across the perilous Atlantic. Indicated on the above map are the points of attack on Iran by the British and Russians.

GENEVA REPORTS EFFORT TO OUST PETAIN'S REGIME

GENEVA, Aug. 27—The authoritative newspaper Journal of Geneva today announced serious measures by the Vichy regime of unoccupied France against Communists and Anarchists accused of organizing an actual revolution under the guise of a Nationalist movement.

There were no details regarding the number of persons involved in the reported coup.

The movement apparently was aimed at displacement of the regime of Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, who recently announced his determination to continue collaboration with Nazi Germany.

Reports of an apparently widespread subversive movement in unoccupied France reached Geneva at a moment when International News Service had completed an exhaustive investigation of conditions in the Nazi-occupied area, where the foreign press has frequently reported actual uprisings against the Nazi army of occupation.

The results of this investigation may be summed up as follows:

There is trouble in occupied France (and now obviously in the unoccupied area as well).

There have been numerous arrests, sabotage incidents and shooting affrays.

But the gravity of the situation appears to have been exaggerated. Swiss newspapers themselves, which still maintain unusually good contacts with both Paris and Vichy, have been exceedingly conservative.

The Paris press itself had admitted a roundup of 6,000 Jews as alleged ringleaders responsible for unrest and sabotage. This is a fairly large number, but Paris, even under the swastika, is still a very large city.

ARMY MAN HURT AS 'JEEP' GOES OFF OHIO ROAD

WAUSEON, Aug. 27—Lieut. James D. Edwards, 22, attached to the 46th field artillery at Fort Custer, Mich., today was suffering neck injuries, received when the one-fourth ton "Jeep" truck in which he was riding left the road near Wauseon, O.

Dr. R. W. Reynolds, of nearby Fayette, O., reported the injury as serious. The truck was part of a caravan, but the remainder of the trucks were not involved in the accident.

The accident occurred yesterday morning.

DR. BUSHONG NAMED
COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Dr. R. E. Bushong, state commissioner of mental diseases since July 1, 1940, today was named superintendent of the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane.

CHEF AT SHELBY WINS FURLOUGH, NOW AIDS GUARD

CAMP PERRY, Aug. 27—The Ohio State Guard today had uncovered a new type of conscientious objector in the person of Earl Rader of Hilliards, O., and neither the guard nor the army would object to finding more like him.

Rader is a chef. Until a short time ago he was cooking for the officers' mess at Camp Shelby, Miss.

He got a month's furlough and came home only to find that the state guard was in camp. That is where his objections started popping up. Rader refused to be left out of things even on vacation.

Taking his three sons and a neighbor boy, he went to Camp Perry and now is busy as chef for the state guard officers' mess.

ARMY BOYS TAKE YACHT, BUT FACE U. S. GUARDHOUSE

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 27—The bid for freedom of two National Guardsmen who went A.W.O.L. from Fort Getty, R. I., in a stolen yacht ended today with the two men behind the bars of Fort Story guardhouse.

The yacht, Blue Peter, owned by Robert Pearsons of Warwick, R. I., was seized by the coast guard cutter Jackson off the Virginia Capes late yesterday. Aboard the yacht were R. H. McClure, 20, and W. Hodgson, 21, missing since August 12 from the Fort Getty garrison.

The two men said they left Fort Getty because they "could no longer endure conditions" there. They described the food as bad and charged that officers were "guilty of favoritism" and said they were trying to get as far away as possible.

McClure told officers that he and his companion had no intention of stealing the yacht. They planned to sail it to Florida, abandon it and then inform the owner. They said they did not own four pistols and three rifles found aboard although one was marked as being the property of the United States. They will be sent to Fort Getty.

THIS TAX COLLECTOR REALLY DOES HIS JOB

WOODBRIDGE, N. J., Aug. 27—The dogged determination of Deputy Tax Collector Peter Post to make good on his collections got him into a peck of trouble today.

On complaint of Mr. and Mrs. August Streichert, Post was charged with prying off a rear door of their house, entering, taking $28.72 from a bureau drawer, and leaving a receipt.

'Objector' Leaves For U. S. Camp

Howard L. Wright, 21, Of Derby, Assigned To North Carolina

NINE TO BE CALLED UP

Contingent To Be Inducted Sometime After Sept. 17

Howard Louis Wright, 21, of Derby, Pickaway County's first conscientious objector to armed service, started on his way to a government camp Wednesday after receiving his final papers from the Selective Service board.

Young Wright is a son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Wright, his father being Methodist pastor at Derby. He was classified in 4-E when he informed the board that he objected to armed service. He registered last October.

The youth was to leave Circleville during the afternoon enroute to Buck Creek Camp, Marion, McDonald County, North Carolina, this camp being set up for conscientious objectors.

The Selective Service board also announced a tentative call for eight white draftees and one Negro youth to fill a quota to be called sometime after September 17. The definite date for the induction is not yet known.

The board revealed that several of the eight men to be taken will be those who registered last July 1 after they had become 21 years of age. Just how many 21-year-olds will go is not certain, but James H. Nungester, Circleville Route 1, a volunteer, is certain to be one of them.

The Negro youth will be Milton Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Henry, East Franklin Street, who is also a volunteer.

The call for the nine draftees is the first since August 12 when two were ordered to service. The last call was August 18 when 18 were ordered to report.

MISSIONARY WHO ESCAPED DEATH IN CHINA TO TALK

Another special speaker will appear at the Mount of Praise camp meeting Thursday at 8 a. m. in the person of Duncan McRoberts, a missionary, who has been struck by explosives, that he has been shot at several times, and has never been injured.

Mr. McRoberts returned to the United States July 4, and reports that he has been in 180 Japanese bombing attacks, has been in six houses that have been struck by explosives, that he has been shot at several times, and has never been injured.

Mr. McRoberts has been in China for the last four years, and has had considerable experience on the Burma Road and at the French Indo-China border, both of these districts being in the world news at this time.

The speaker's address in United States is at Winona Lake, Ind.

Tokyo Wants Assurance That Gasoline Will Be Used Only Against Germany, And Not Retained At Vladivostok

GREAT NAZI-RUSS CONFLICT RAGING

British Air Force Scores Heavily In Night Raids On Cologne Industries; Allies Move Deeper Into Iran

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Japanese Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura today requested and was granted an appointment with Secretary of State Cordell Hull. His action led to the belief that he may be planning to make the diplomatic representations which Tokyo dispatches said were being lodged in Washington against shipments of American war supplies to Russia via Vladivostok.

By International News Service

American aviation gasoline bound for Russia provided fuel for explosive Japanese anger today. Tokyo announced that strong representations had been made to both Washington and Moscow against shipments of huge quantities of airplane gas to Siberia.

As the Far Eastern crisis flared awry, Britain and Russia reported swift advances on four major fronts in Iran against little resistance. Germany asserted that the whole 22nd Soviet Army had been wiped out between Smolensk and Lake Ilmen, with 40,000 Russian troops killed and 30,000 taken prisoner.

And the RAF staged one of the war's greatest sweeps against Nazi-occupied France. The sky over Britain was described as virtually filled with planes, following night attacks on Cologne and other Reich industrial areas which were "on a somewhat larger scale than of late."

Japan's representations to America and Russia did not have quite the high-octane content of the gasoline being sped to Vladivostok from San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Nippon asked for either a cessation of the shipments, or a Russian guarantee that the fuel would not be retained in Vladivostok, and would be used only against Germany.

Tokyo urged the powers to LONDON, Aug. 27—Full Russo-British military control of Iran forms the basis of terms on which the allies are willing to suspend hostilities, a British government spokesman revealed today. So far, he indicated, the Iranian Shah's government and the invaders still are far from a settlement.

Greenberg, driving his own convertible coupe, was stopped by a military police scout car patrolling the area and seeking to enforce the 25-mile-an-hour speed limit.

At a hearing, it was disclosed that Greenberg had been excused by "proper authorities" from the 11 p. m. "bed check" and thus had permission to be off the reservation.

The verdict was that Greenberg would not be allowed to use his car for 30 days, the keys to the vehicle being turned over to Lieut. A. H. Vogel, his commanding officer.

State Department quarters in Washington reported that Japanese officials have "expressed concern" to Ambassador Grew over the fuel shipments.

Moscow served a "hands off" warning on Japan. The Soviet government told Tokyo that the U. S. S. R. would regard any attempt to hinder Russian trade with the United States via Siberia as an act inimical to Russia.

Germany told of "uncommonly bloody losses" to the Russians in a battle of several days' duration on the Smolensk-Lake Ilmen front. The fight ended with the Nazi capture of the town of Velikiye Lugi.

BOY'S THUMB CRUSHED IN DOOR OF AUTOMOBILE

Ronald, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Harrison, 142 York Street, was taken to Berger Hospital Tuesday evening after he suffered a severe injury to his thumb, which was crushed in an automobile door.

Whether the end of the thumb will be lost or whether it can be saved will not be known for several days.

GREENBERG RUNS AUTO TOO FAST, MUST WALK NOW

FORT CUSTER, Mich., Aug. 27—Corporal Henry Greenberg, the former Detroit Tiger slugging star, had his automobile taken away from him today for 30 days following a hearing on a charge that he was speeding through the army post at 42 miles an hour shortly after midnight.

Greenberg, driving his own convertible coupe, was stopped by a military police scout car patrolling the area and seeking to enforce the 25-mile-an-hour speed limit.

At a hearing, it was disclosed that Greenberg had been excused by "proper authorities" from the 11 p. m. "bed check" and thus had permission to be off the reservation.

MILADY WARNED DRESS PRICES TO BE BOOSTED

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—The retail prices of dresses will shoot up 20 percent in the near future—despite the establishment of price ceilings on cotton and rayon by the federal government—Morris Kolchian, executive director of the Affiliated Dress Manufacturers Association, said today.

A price rise, he said, is "compulsory" because the cost of materials and labor have gone up. Kolchian pointed out that the federal price ceilings were not imposed on various textiles and yarns until prices had increased considerably. The ceilings, he said, are higher than the prices manufacturers paid for the same materials last month.

Police Find Mother And Three Children Slashed To Death; Note Is Left

Another Youngster And Ex-Patrolman Alive; Murder And Suicide Hinted

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Multiple murder today visited a squalid little home in Brooklyn where police found a mother and three of her small children slashed to death, a fourth child critically wounded, and the father, a former patrolman dismissed from the force for intoxication, covered with blood and crying out accusations against his dead wife.

Police said first indications were that the tragedy was a case of murder and suicide. A suicide note, apparently in the mother's handwriting, was found in the home.

POLICE CHIEF'S EFFORT TO SAVE OHIOAN FUTILE

DEFIANCE, O., Aug. 27—Efforts of Police Chief Karl A. Weaner to block the fatal shooting proved futile and today Willard Watson, 28, was dead from a shotgun blast fired by his own hand.

Summoned to the Watson home, Chief Weaner found the youth holding the muzzle of a shotgun against his chest, with a ramrod against the trigger.

When Chief Weaner attempted to brush the gun aside, Watson fired. Motive for the suicide has not been learned.

RAIN IS CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS IN COUNTY AREA

More than Inch Recorded Tuesday Afternoon By Federal Gauge

WORKMAN, 23, IS HURT

Several Motor Collisions Happen On Route 23, South Of City

A heavy rain Tuesday afternoon in which more than an inch fell on the Circleville district was a contributory cause of several accidents, one of which sent a South Bloomingville man to Berger Hospital suffering from a facial injury and several more of which resulted in motorists narrowly escaping serious injuries.

The rain totaled, according to the government gauge, 1.04 inches, and caused small streams to leave their banks temporarily and partially blocked several of Circleville's thoroughfares when the water came so fast that storm sewers were unable to take it off the streets fast enough.

Gilfred L. McNichols, 23, of South Bloomingville, was rushed to Berger Hospital at 6:15 o'clock Tuesday evening in the Defenbaugh ambulance after he was struck on the head by a heavy skid being used to lower gas pipe into a ditch.

The Anderson Brothers Co., placing a gas pipeline in the South Bloomingville - Laurelville district, was working its men overtime Tuesday evening after the storm in an effort to get pipe into three-foot ditches before cave-ins might have forced additional excavations. The ditches were partially water-filled and skids and ropes were wet.

One of the ropes used on a mechanical hoist became unhooked, causing one of the skids to break and strike McNichols in the face. He has a deep gash under one eye and is considerably bruised.

Lowell Leasure of Hallsville suffered a fractured left arm and a laceration above the elbow Tuesday night when his car skidded and turned over on Route 159 near the Route 23 intersection in Ross County.

Mr. Leasure was taken to the office of a Chillicothe physician by a passing motorist.

Four Ohioans miraculously escaped serious injury at 4:20 p. m. Tuesday when the car of Paul Lebrun of Lucasville skidded and overturned 12 miles south of Circleville on Route 23. Highway patrolmen said that neither Lebrun nor three passengers in his car were hurt except for minor cuts and bruises.

A Grant Trucking Company vehicle from Jackson skidded off Route 23, 13 miles south of Circleville, and went through a fence into a field. The driver's name was not learned, patrolmen arriving there after he left the scene.

FAMILY MAN, 39, FACES CHARGES IN BANK THEFT

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Michael Bowers, 39, a family man, living in a luxurious home in suburban Forest Hills and accepted as a respectable member of his community, was held in $20,000 bail today as a suspect in the Stroudsburg, Pa., bank holdup of August 5 in which $76,000 was snatched from two bank messengers.

Arrest of Bowers, father of two children, was revealed by the New York offices of the Federal Bureau of investigation. He was taken to FBI headquarters where he was confronted by five witnesses from Stroudsburg. Later he pleaded not guilty before U. S. Commissioner Jacob A. Visel and was held for further hearing Friday.

The bank robbery was perpetrated by four men, one of whom brandished a sub-machine gun. Ralph Rheinfels, 37, and Lewis Heiney, 65, the messengers, were disarmed on the street by three of the robbers while a fourth waited

TWO CARS HIT, HORN OF ONE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Minor damage was done to both cars, but the horn of the automobile of R. S. Braskett of near Ashville created a lot of excitement Tuesday afternoon in up-town Circleville. The horn started to blow when Braskett pulled to the left to avoid hitting the rear of a truck that was backing from the curb and drove into the bumper of the car of L. M. Mader, Circleville funeral director.

The right front fender of the Braskett car was smashed, while Mader's bumper was damaged. The accident happened on Court Street opposite the Grand Theatre.

Portsmouth Minister Named Be Delegates Attending Annual Conference

The Rev. C. M. Bowman, pastor of the First United Brethren Church, Portsmouth, was elected Tuesday afternoon by pastors and lay delegates attending the Southeast Ohio Conference at his church as the new conference superintendent. He succeeds the Rev. P. E. Wright of Lancaster, former Circleville pastor.

The Portsmouth minister defeated the Rev. Mr. Wright and the Rev. D. S. Mills of Columbus for the position.

The conference continues through Friday when assignment of pastors will be announced. The Rev. A. N. Gruesser of Circleville and E. S. Neuding, a leader in the local church, are attending the conference. It is expected that the Rev. Mr. Gruesser will be returned to Circleville.

The Rev. Mr. Bowman is a graduate of Otterbein College at Westerville and received the equivalent of his seminary work at Bonebrake Seminary. Before entering the ministry, he taught school for four years. He was pastor of the C. E. Memorial Church at Newark four years, served one year in the Rockbridge charge and was minister of the Washington Avenue U. B. Church, Columbus, for three years. He is a World War veteran. He is married and has three children.

Two hundred pastors and lay delegates are attending the meeting. Rev. M. B. White of Chillicothe was in charge of the memorial service at the Tuesday morning session. He paid tribute to the memory of the Rev. G. F. Conant of the Southeast Ohio District and the Rev. J. H. Harris, prominent in conference work.

SERVICE BOARDS TO FIND POSTS FOR ARMY MEN

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Each of the state's 330 local selective service boards today was charged with the responsibility for restoring jobs to 8000 Ohio soldiers who are expected to be released from service by December.

Lieut. Col. C. W. Gobie, state selective service administrator, instructed the boards yesterday to recommend one of their number as chairman of a re-employment program. The chairman's formal appointment will be made by Gov. John W. Bricker.

This chairman, in turn, will name his own voluntary committee from citizens in the board's area. The committee will be given the use of board facilities to carry on its work.

The selective service law requires that employers re-hire men who were called into service unless they have become unable to handle their old jobs.

If an employer fails to restore a man to his old place, at the same pay and with the same seniority rating, the federal courts may order him to do so upon request by the soldier.

If restoration of a soldier to his old job is impossible, the local committee is to help him find a job, either through the public employment service or private channels.

PARRETT IRKED BY ACCOUNT OF BUS LINE STAND

Washington C. H. Newspaper Says Service To Fayette City Opposed Here

MISUNDERSTANDING CITED

Chamber Of Commerce Man Says He Is In Favor Of Proposed Route

Mack Parrett, secretary of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, expressed indignation Wednesday over the report published in Washington C. H. concerning his testimony before the State Utilities Commission in its hearing regarding the feasibility of permitting operation of a bus line between Circleville and Washington C. H. that would also service Williamsport, Atlanta, Clarksburg, New Holland and Frankfurt.

"I appeared before the Commission at its request," Parrett said, "and I declared that the bus line would be of much service to persons living in the western part of Pickaway County who wished to shop in Circleville's stores."

He denied opposing the line as announced in the Fayette County seat, where he was quoted as saying the line should go as far as New Holland but not to Washington C. H.

"There is certainly a misunderstanding somewhere," Parrett said.

A Washington C. H. newspaper said that "a new bus line between Washington C. H. and Circleville may be established in the near future if opposition by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce is overcome."

Continuing the account said: "This was the impression Philip Bell reported to the Business and Civic Association following a hearing on the application to set up the line held before the State Utilities Commission."

"Bell represented the B. & C. A. at the hearing last week and made his report which was announced, informally and in general terms, Monday. The Utilities Commission now has the application of the Valley Public Service Co. under advisement and Bell said no indication was given as to when a decision might be announced."

"Bell said he got the impression at the hearing that there were two other companies which operate bus lines elsewhere seeking to take over this same route. He did not, however, say which companies they were."

"The route sought is from Circleville to Washington C. H. through Williamsport, Atlanta, Clarksburg, Frankfurt and New Holland. The application was for one round trip each day, with the bus leaving Circleville in the morning and Washington C. H. in the evening. His report to the B. & C. A. did not give the exact time of arrivals and departures."

"Representatives from the intermediate villages were at the hearing, along with those from Circleville and Washington C. H., to tell the commission why and how they thought the proposed bus line could or could not serve their communities."

"The chief opposition to the line came from Circleville, Bell reported. The representative from there, he said, gave his approval to the line as far as New Holland but told the commission he could see no need for extending it into Washington C. H."

Kent on Way to Visit F.D.R.

THE Duke of Kent, brother of England's King George, waves to spectators as he travels by car to Hyde Park, N. Y., for a visit with President Roosevelt. The Duke traveled to New York by bomber plane, following an inspection tour of Canadian war plants.

NATIVE OF OHIO HELD ON COUNT OF ESPIONAGE

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 — Kurt Frederick Ludwig, 38, an American, who was arraigned in Spokane, Wash., last night on espionage charges, will be brought to New York within a few days, federal government officials said today.

Ludwig, an Ohio-born salesman, was indicted by a federal grand jury in New York yesterday on a charge of mailing abroad "information as to the disposition, location, numbers and equipment of the United States army."

U. S. Attorney Mathias F. Correa, in announcing the indictment, disclosed that Ludwig, who has spent most of his life in Germany, was arrested last Saturday in Seattle by federal agents as he sought to flee the country.

Ludwig, who authorities said made a trip to Germany as recently as last year, is married and the father of two children. He lives in suburban New York. If convicted, he faces a maximum 10 year prison sentence and a $5,000 fine.

ASHVILLE By S. D. Fridley

Ashville, Phone 79

The Nothstine family reunion was held at the local park Sunday, with near fifty present. Basket dinner, short program and visiting made the day a happy one. Officers elected were Walter and Mrs. Hedges for president and vice president and Mrs. Maynard Marion secretary-treasurer. Same place, same date for the 1942 meet, was the order.

Doctor and Mrs. L. C. Schiff spent their annual vacation over the week end, Friday night till Monday at and about the Queen City, Dale, left behind on the outing, is taking his this week visiting Grand Dad and Mom and the state fair.

"If not already owning one, better get busy and find a bathing suit to your liking, 'cause you'll need it". This is the order we received this morning direct from the swimming pool, bond sale solicitors, out at work for only a short time.

Edward Dewey, an Ashville native residing here for many years, was stricken with paralysis Monday, and the report from the home this morning is "some better".

The Clarence Baum family of Corpus Christi, Texas, who have been visiting relatives here for several weeks started for their home Monday accompanied by Mr. Baum who joined them here last week.

Youngster Max Marion, son of Maynard and Mrs. Marion, is recovered from a tonsil operation a few days ago and is all set for his first day at school now but a few days away. Not so pleased with the school going idea either. Remember how last year, a couple of timid kiddies were made to like school going very fine and have been at it steady ever since.

James Taylor Writes Of Panama Canal Zone Customs

The following interesting letter was received recently by Mrs. P. C. Florence from James Taylor, who is stationed in the Canal Zone. It discusses the district in an interesting manner. Taylor's address is 51st Pursuit Squadron, Albrook Field, Canal Zone.

(Editor's Note: The Daily Herald will be pleased to publish any news received by parents and friends of boys in the training camp if they contain information of general interest.)

Rio Hato August 10, 1941

Dear Folk:

I can't remember whether it's been a week or not since I wrote last but I guess it doesn't matter. I am well and still at the gunnery camp.

I got a three day pass and went to Balboa and Panama City last week. Had a swell time. I stayed at the Y. M. C. A. I think I did more sleeping than anything else. I rode a chiva as it is called down here; just a bus back home.

I was the only white person on it. I started the trip last Wednesday and Wednesday must be wash day in Panama for every little stream we crossed the women were washing clothes in the creek. I guess some of them didn't have a change for they were naked. After they washed the clothes they just threw them out on the grass to dry.

We went over the El Vado mountains and through a couple cattle ranches. The cattle look nice and healthy. The cattle were branded and the cowboys rode ponies just like the west, I guess. The only thing was the cowboys were almost as big as their ponies.

We passed women along the road carrying things on their heads. Some of them look like they were carrying 70 or 80 pounds and not once did they drop their loads. They seem to have perfect balance and a good neck.

In the mountains I saw Indians with rings in their nose and ears, and several wild animals. I also saw their homes which were made out of mud walls and grass roofs, or all of grass. The women seem to do all the work. We crossed the canal in a ferry. I think there were about thirty cars

CHECKING THE CHILDREN

NEW clothes are being bought for young school people at a rapid rate all over the country. Retail sales are decidedly up. That's fine. It means that the children will have nice new things for school, and that their parents have money to pay for them without worrying about it.

There's another thing that should be done for the youngsters before school begins. They should be taken to the family doctor to make sure they are all right, with no defects to hamper them in their great job of learning. He will advise that they see the oculist if he thinks they need that check. He's sure to say they should have the dentist give the teeth a good look and cleaning. Perhaps ears need attention.

Small defects should be caught before they become big ones. Children should be able to face the school year without handicaps easily removed.

SHORTER CREDITS

THE famous line of Omar Khayyam, "Ah take the cash and let the credit go" may yet be our commercial motto, but with a sort of reverse meaning, because we are being urged beyond all things to "Heed the rumble of the distant drum." The crackdown on installment credit isn't absolute, but the credit is to be held within reasonable limits. Eighteen months is now pronounced by the Federal Reserve Board as a reasonable extent of time.

Looking back, we may think this rule is a mild one. Anyway, the American public, meaning all of the customers together, and a good many thousand dealers, too, have been enjoying more credit than is good for us. We owe more millions than it's pleasant to think of. It's time to start whittling them down.

ENOUGH RADIOS

WITH priorities and bottlenecks chasing each other around posts all over the country as well as in Washington, town of the frenzied, it's a source of satisfaction to know that the powers of price management have decreed that there must be enough materials saved out to make radios. There are about 50,000,000 sets now in operation. They can be kept in repair and more may be made.

In the slave countries it's a sin to listen to anything but shouts from your slave-drivers. But in free countries it is a virtue to listen to anything you want to. The democracies assume that along with your soap, tooth-paste and eye-wash, you will get something good—a form that sets you to using your brain, good music that rests

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

WILLKIE TO BE SPOKESMAN

WASHINGTON — The isolationist-packed Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee appointed by Senator Burt Wheeler to investigate "war propaganda" in the movies and radio may get more than it is bargaining for when it tackles the movie makers.

They haven't advertised it, but they are quietly preparing to give the committee a hot head-on reception on all issues it undertakes to raise.

One of the surprises up their sleeve is to have Wendell Willkie as their spokesman and legal counsel.

The Republican leader is an old hand in dealing with congressional committees. Before he entered the political arena he faced many of them and the reputé he won battling them had a lot to do with his meteoric rise in politics.

A militant anti-isolationist, Willkie also has strong personal feelings about Wheeler's hand-picked committee. Willkie considers it a "sneak" investigation and part of an organized isolationist drive to terrorize opponents into silence.

The charge of "sneak" investigation appears well founded. The Senate has not authorized the probe, the committee has no power to subpoena anyone, and is operating wholly on Wheeler's say so as chairman of the Interstate Commerce committee. Four of five members he appointed are fellow isolationist zealots and the fifth, McFarland of Arizona, is a rookie of only seven months' Senate experience.

Further, as if this biased set-up were not enough, the committee also is secretly trying to pick its "victims". It has carefully selected certain movie executives for questioning, apparently with the intention of not permitting others to be heard.

HOW CONGRESSMEN VOTE

The House's refusal to override the President's veto of the $320,000,000 pork-loaded highway bill did not set well with Representative Wilburn Cartwright, Chairman of the Roads Committee. Ordinarily the Oklahoman is genial and tolerant, but he worked long and hard to put over the measure and the rebuff stung him to the quick.

So he sent a letter to his fellow Congressmen telling them caustically what he thought of them.

"It was an interesting tussle," he said, among other jibes. "It was funny to watch Congressmen change back and forth before the vote was announced. Being a Congressman is a great character builder. Some have to take a referendum every day to find their convictions."

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

COULD Russia conceivably be transformed into a democracy? Is it imaginable that it believes it is now?

Have President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill some sort of a lurking notion that maybe they actually can convert Comrade Stalin into a genuine democrat? Is that one of the things they want to confer with him about, in addition to conferring with him relative to wartime policies?

These questions are being asked in Washington and maybe in London, too.

Even those who ask them don't answer themselves very believably in the affirmative. Nevertheless, it sounds odd to hear such queries put.

It's understandable why the world democracies' leaders deem it wise to aid the Muscovites all they can in the latter's fight with the Axis. Their opinion is that their imperative first consideration is to see Herr Hitler's and Signor Mussolini's types of totalitarianism destroyed, leaving Bolshevism to be worried about later on.

All the same, numerous suggestions have been made that Joe Stalin's system is due to be an exceedingly difficult institution to be democratically dealt with after the war, assuming the Nazis and Fascists' extinction as a result of the pending conflict. Joe, on that supposition, having been very helpful to 'em, it'll be hard for the democracies to resume being dead against him, as heretofore, and yet they certainly won't like Bolshevism any better than ever they did.

But suppose that Joe Stalin himself and the rest of the Bolsheviks have, in the meantime, become democratized.

HINTS FROM MOSCOW

Perhaps it's only wishful thinking, but it's a fact that hints have been coming from Moscow lately that are democratically favorably interpreted.

The Soviet folk manifestly are highly appreciative of their alliance with Britain and of our readiness to send 'em all possible supplies from the United States—on credit, if necessary, and it's made clear that we don't care much whether or not we ever collect.

I've referred already to the flood of news releases that Russian Ambassador Oumansky has been putting out from his Washington headquarters ever since the Nazis launched their attack on his home country and it became apparent to him that our sympathies generally were on his side of the campaign. Before that he hadn't peeped for publicity. Now I (and every correspondent in the capital) get mimeographed pages and pages from him daily, bidding for American support.

And there's scarcely a page that doesn't emphasize Russia as a democracy.

A quotation from the Moscow newspaper, Izvestia, was illustrative. It directly followed conclusion of the Russo-British pact.

This agreement, said Izvestia, as quoted, "puts both great countries in the same group of democratic nations devoted to the noble ideal of the destruction of the most perfidious foe of humanity, culture and civilization."

"Democratic nations!" — mind you. Russia's one of 'em, according to Izvestia and that release of Ambassador Oumansky's.

TRADITIONAL FRIENDSHIP: The ambassador's literature also strongly stresses Russia's traditional friendship for the United States, dating back to czarist days and to sociability of the two countries across Behring Strait.

But that Communistic Russia's a democracy is a different thing. Is it just dressing itself up in a democratic disguise in an emergency, or is it honestly flopping democratically?

Russia's revolution from czarism is being quite intensely analyzed.

Originally it was intended to be an anarchist revolution. Anarchism is the ultimate of democracy — so violently ultimate that no rational student of society believes that it can be made to work. It didn't work in Russia's case, but drifted into a despotism about as bad as the czar's.

Now is it trying to readjust itself into something sensible, along democratic lines?

That's what Washington, and probably London, are wondering.

Epilepsy Is Not a Mental Disease

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

cians, and has as its object to keep the public informed about the progress on epilepsy and related diseases.

More than that, its object is to carry our modern knowledge of epilepsy to those who need it, to dispel the taboos and superstitions which exist, and to try to teach the people who have these periodical spells that they are not outcasts from society or mentally deranged, and that there is nothing to be ashamed of in this condition any more than there is in any other ordinary disease.

In pursuance of this objective, an extremely valuable expression of the modern viewpoint on this condition is contained in a book called Science and Seizures by Dr. William G. Lennox of the Harvard Medical School (Harper & Bros., Paul B. Hoeber, 1941). This book treats not only of epilepsy but also of migraine headaches which are seizures of a somewhat related kind. Most of the taboos and popular ideas about these conditions are fully discussed.

Samples: Epilepsy is not a mental disease, but a physical disease. It is manifest by "disordered electric currents of the brain."

Is Epilepsy Hereditary?

Is epilepsy hereditary? This is a frequent question which correspondents write to me. Statistical studies show that not more than twenty per cent of patients give a history of seizures in known relatives. It will not do, however, to minimize the possibility of hereditary epilepsy. If an epileptic has four children, there is one chance out of ten that one of these children will have seizures. If there are two children, the chances are one out of twenty. About one out of twenty-six relatives of the average patient has seizures.

Two great contributions have recently been made to the study of epilepsy by Boston physicians. One is a machine which can record the electric pulsations of the brain. These are picked up from the scalp and made to write a line. All people subject to epilepsy produce a pattern on this record. Different types are also recorded by the instrument. It pictures both danger signals and progress.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer E. Clifton and two children of North Court Street and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Haines, West Main Street, returned home after a 10-day trip through the East.

Mayor W. J. Graham announced the appointment of Lawrence Goeller as one of the members to serve on a committee to name a city recreation committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hott returned home from their wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Canada.

10 YEARS AGO

It was decided to have a horse show as part of the 1931 Circleville Pumpkin Show.

For the pleasure of her guest, Mrs. Arthur Raymond, of Columbus, Miss. Carrie Johnson entertained 12 guests at a delightful bridge party at her home on North Court Street.

Charlie's Blue Orchestra orchestra, under the direction of Ferd Pickens, broadcast for a half hour from a Columbus radio station.

The second discovery is the use of dilantin to prevent or minimize the epileptic attacks.

There are many different kinds of epilepsy and there are many different causes for the seizures. The most important thing for a person subject to seizures to know is that a great deal of help can be given by the modern physician with modern methods. There is nothing to be ashamed of in the condition and anyone who is subject to it should consult a physician. The doctor can give him a great deal of help. Mental impairment may be the result of frequent seizures and when these are properly understood, the state of mind is improved.

A remarkable instance is that of a twenty-three-year-old man who had frequent seizures since childhood. He never learned to read or write. With the administration of the medicine, dilantin, which stopped his seizures, the man began to learn with great rapidity and in the course of six months, his mental age rose from six years to a level of ten years.

Answer: Yes

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. S. M.: "Is living in a three room apartment doing justice to a small child? This question is of interest to many married couples with a small child on a limited income. We have a bedroom, living room, bath, and a good-sized kitchen; also a back porch with plenty of sunshine. Our child sleeps twelve hours every night and two hours during the day, but is the noise harmful to her even though she sleeps well? Naturally, we do not have any big parties but she is conscious of low talking when friends come in. We cannot live in isolation and shun our friends, but are we doing an injustice to her?"

Answer: It seems to me this child is decidedly not underprivileged, and I am afraid you are falling into the habit that many mothers acquire of fussy apprehension.

Castle of Contentment

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

WHEN SCOTT told Ylena that Tate was married, she got to her feet slowly, then, because her legs refused to uphold her, immediately sat down again. She leaned against the back of the davenport in a dejected position, not looking at Scott, and the humiliated red surged over her face and neck.

Scott said nervously, "I'd have told you before, Ylena, but I thought you knew. In New York, you said, 'Let's not talk about Tate.' I thought—" He began to stammer, wholly miserable. "It sounded as if you did—the flippancy way you talked about his ring the other night—well, then, just now in the taxi when I realized you didn't—oh, Ylena, I couldn't tell you go back to La Madera not knowing."

She put her hand on his in a comforting gesture.

"Of course not, Scott." You did the right thing. Her voice was toneless. "But I can't understand why someone didn't wire me."

"After all, it is Tate Cromwell's obligation, Ylena."

"Yes, you're right. You're right about everything. And now I don't have to hurry home, do I? There's no reason for me to hurry home. Not one real reason. We can stay as long as we want to." Without looking at it, she slipped off the marquise diamond and put it into her purse. In a more rapid voice she continued, "Don't tell me anything more about it. Scott, I don't want to hear—don't tell me who it is, and please stop looking so worried. I shan't be troublesome. I'm going to be all right; but let's do something! Let's do something!"

"All right, Ylena." He took her arm and pulled her up. "Anything, Ylena, but what?"

She gave him a spunky little smile. "I think the first thing is to get our luggage off that boat."

They lunched at El Patio in a court filled with flaming bougainvillea that climbed over blue trellises to hang in scarlet and green clusters against yellow walls. Fat, important acting pigeons strutted back and forth, almost keeping time to the music of the guitar players and serenaders. Conversationally it was a silent luncheon, with both Scott and Rose watching Ylena who, in turn, watched nothing.

At siesta time, shades drawn against the blindingly white sun, Ylena lay quietly in their cool, darkened room, so that Rose would think she was napping, and made herself face a situation which so far had been an unbelievable, whirligig nightmare. Tate had said he would make her sorry. And he had! She ached with being sorry. Worse still, he had insulted her and made her ridiculous in La Madera, a realization that braced her pride to the extent that she began to plan more rationally.

Until she felt powerful enough to face the curious with a definite savoir-faire, she would not return to La Madera. She would obey Scott Hamilton's wild whirlwind suggestion and remain in this paradise of "do-nothing." She would relax in the velvet luxury of the tropics and live each moment for that moment, enjoying to the utmost, each flower, each breeze from the ocean, each bite of food, each drink, all with no thought of duty. And certainly—to herself she made a determined vow—with no thought of Tate. She fell asleep. In the late afternoon Scott's telephone summons awoke her.

"You and Rose come on and let's go places. I've rented a car." Immaculate in white linen and a fine looking new Panama hat, he was waiting before their hotel.

At the curb was a small sedan with a young Cuban at the wheel, who gave a smile rivaling an electric sign in full glow and leaped from his seat to bow Ylena and Rose into the machine. He shut the door after Hamilton, and again turned on his incandescent smile. "The Malecon, Senor?"

"Neptuno street first," Scott directed. He faced Ylena. "That's the pawnshop section, where all the rich people pawn their jewels and dole out when the sugar market plays them dirty. I'm going to dig out a hunk of jewelry for you."

In various shops they diligently unearthed, lifting things, pushing plunder aside, snooping. After many minutes, an hour possibly, Scott asked the girl, "What about these?" He was holding a fistful of garnets—necklace, bracelet, earrings and ring.

"Oh, no, Scott. I'm sure they are too much."

"Nothing is too much for you—not even that 24-carat diamond in the Capitol building—besides," he assured her, "they'll practically be a gift when I get through."

He began to haggle, lazily at first with a totally disinterested look on his face. As other customers drew nearer, he gradually crescendoed, until through various changes, he was bargaining with a frenzy as Latin as that of the storekeeper. The crowd grew still more, watching with intense interest. After a final spiel, Cuban shrugs, expostulations, followed by financial surrender, compliments to Ylena, smiling congratulations to Scott and various beaming salutations, the garnets were Scott's. And then Ylena's. He dropped them into her cupped hands as casually as if tossing feed to her chickens.

"Hang the ring in your nose if you're afraid to wear a ring I've given you. But do wear the entire batch tonight. And that beautiful white dancing frock—we're lucky to be here between November and March. We can go to Sana-Souci."

Under the expert guidance of their chauffeur—and of Scott Hamilton himself, who often had been in Cuba—they started on a tour of contrasts. Sixteenth century ruins and decayed looking churches made a contrast to Americanized office buildings, modern hotels and the resplendent new Capitol. Narrow streets, the vendors' carts piled high with tropical fruits, vegetables, many colored fish, made a contrast to the wide, sweeping boulevards. And the plaster-cracked, low dwellings of the poor to the exclusive Vadado residential section, with its houses of stone, marble, colorful stucco, set amid extravagant gardens of flowers.

"Chamber of Commerce de luxe," Rose designated.

"Oh, but beautiful," the girl cried. "Still I prefer the 'Old Town,' Spanish section. It made me feel like dancing a Carmen right there on the cobblestones."

"Let's go back and do it. I'll pass the hat for you—by the way, no one has said anything about my new Monte Christi Panama," Scott lamented.

Rose said evenly, "You were too proud."

"And why not? It cost over a hundred dollars." He turned as he heard Ylena gasp. "Some Panamas, my little lamb, cost as much as a thousand dollars."

She quickly recovered. "Well, you needn't try to pay for yours with my street dancing."

Scott Hamilton ignored her to say to the chauffeur, "Get over on the Fifth Avenue drive." He leaned back and informed the women with all the pomposity of a professional guide, "Three solid miles of flowers," then nudged them simultaneously, saying no attention to the street, his eyes were wide, his smile was bright.

Rose trumpeted, "We'll all have plenty of flowers if you don't watch where you're going." Savagely she motioned him around.

The next couple of hours they dawdled away at the Havana Yacht club, sipping early drinks while they sat overlooking the clean white sands and the blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

As they drove home in the early dusk, along the Malecon, Ylena sighed with complete pleasure and said, "I'm trying to decide whether Havana is more beautiful in the twilight or in the early morning."

"Stick with me," Scott advised, "and you'll soon see it again in the early morning. Then you can make up your mind."

Ylena looked lovely that evening in the wash-waisted, full-skirted chiffon dress and the full set of garnet jewelry. Of all the places they went, she liked best the cafe off the beaten path, where they dined, a small place, quiet and peaceful, redolent with native atmosphere. A tiny boy gave her a flower. All during dinner, and while they lingered over liqueurs in that soft fragrance of half-witted flowers, coffee, liquor and strange foods, an old, old woman in ragged skirts and an exquisite head-shawl, played the guitar and sang, in a voice unbelievably good and strong.

In response to Scott's generous appreciation as they left the restaurant, she bowed again and again, and showered him with soft-reiterated smiling Spanish phrases.

"What did she say, Scott?" They had reached the street.

"Nothing much. The usual flowery raving of a well-tipped Latin."

"But what?" the girl persisted. "What, that could possibly make you blush so much?"

Scott paused before they reached their car and the perpetually grinning Pepe. "She bestowed a million blessings and a million prayers—she wished for good prosperity, much health and many children—to you and your angelic wife."

TOMATO HORN WORM IS RAVENOUS EATER OF LEAVES

A tomato pest with a big appetite

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, these fat green worms are from two to four inches long with a slender horn on the back end. The caterpillar is the same color as the foliage and is often difficult to detect.

In small gardens the worms can be picked off by hand or the plants can be sprayed with lead arsenate before the fruits set. Gardeners are reporting success with rotenone spray.

House plants that have been removed from their pots and set out in the garden for summer should be taken up and potted now. Prune the plants severely and then keep them outdoors until late September.

Watch for mildew on phloxes, fall asters, delphiniums and other susceptible perennials. All of which should be sprayed promptly with Bordeaux mixture at the first sign of this trouble.

Flower seeds, such as pansies, forget-me-nots, English daisies and violas may also be sown now for flowering with next spring's bulbs. Some of the perennial flower seeds such as those of hollyhocks, poppies and sweet Williams may also still be sown.

Among the vegetables, lettuce and radish seeds may be sown for a late crop and will do especially well in a cold frame if the soil is good.

All fertilization should stop but watering of all sorts of plants should continue as long as they are growing, even until the ground freezes, during dry spells.

CANTOR APPEARS

Probably the most unusual happening in radio will occur Wednesday, August 27 when Eddie Cantor will be opposition to himself. The bawdy-eyed comedian will appear on the final "Quizzer Baseball" program, which substituted for him during the summer, to tell the audience about his return on September 3 with his "Time to Smile" program on the NBC-Red network. Immediately after, while "Quizzer Baseball" is still on the air, Cantor will rush over to CBS to emcee the ninth "Treasure Hour," competing against his own sponsor. In the interests of patriotism and national defense the sponsor has given him permission to make his unusual gesture.

KYSER TO TOUR

Kay Kyser will leave Hollywood after his program of October 1, for a brief tour of eastern military camps and one or two theatre engagements. His eastern stay will last only about five weeks, since his schedule calls for production of his fourth picture to begin January 1.

HERE'S FAVORITE

Keenan Wynn, able character actor, is fast becoming known as the favorite of comedians. Among the laugh-provokers who have already signed for his services are Frank Fay and Col Stoopnagle.

GRAND OLE OPRY

There will be three instead of the usual two guest-starring acts on the Grand Ole Opry program Saturday, August 30, 8 p. m. over the NBC-Southern Red network, when the Gully Jumpers, Alcyone, Jack Nap and Dee appear. Gully's Old Time Fiddlers will play "Ragtime Annie" and "Fisher's Hornpipe." Alcyone, Jack Nap and Dee will join in the patriotic tune, "Any Bonds Today." Roy Acuff will sing "Just to Ease My Weary Mind" and "Streamlined Cannonball." Ford Rush will sing "Quitting Party" and "Barbara Allen." The comedy team of Pap

RADIO BRIEFS

Eddie Byron, producer of "Mr. District Attorney," has virtually completed casting of the play, "Distant City," and has drawn many of the players from persons who have worked for him on the radio show. Although "Mr. District Attorney" has no studio audience, most of the actors do just as much "stage business" or visual acting as if they were appearing in a theatre, and this has given Byron plenty of opportunity to study their work.

Alice Kennedy, the San Francisco singing sensation, who started her eastern tour at the Hollenden Hotel in Chicago after radio success on the coast, is featuring Peter Van Steeden's song hit "V For Victory," and leads patrons of the Hollenden room in singing the stirring tune.

Joe Julian will have the lead in "Bright Horizons, Story of Michael West," which starts on CBS Monday, August 25. He created the original Michael West character in "Big Sister," from which the personality is being taken for the new series.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, August 27

A MODERATE degree of success and satisfaction should mark this day, although there are openings for advancement, favor and preferment knocking at the door. These may be attended by temptations to do the wrong thing, or make hazardous decisions. While the mind will be clever and the wits swift and keen, yet certain obscurities or confusions may pull in unprofitable directions, causing unfavorable results. A tendency to romantic ideas, sentimental fancies or social glamor may be the defeating factor.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should be assured a year of good opportunity for success, advancement, promotion or tokens of preferment from superiors or those in power. An urge to grasp such advantage and to expand the field of action and ambition carefully developed may be encouraged, but the same may be imperilled by extravagance, over-enthusiasm, undue haste in forcing issues, or other unwise temptations, precipitating reversals or false moves. Sentimental, glamorous or romantic ideas may confuse and perplex, particularly where public or collective demands are involved.

A child born on this day should be versatile, resourceful, highly intellectual, attracting the support of its superiors and attaining success.

Dodgers, Cards Split Big Bill

One And One-Half Games Continue To Keep Teams Apart; Cincinnati Meets Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—After the several thousand words he hollered and whooped while his Brooklyn Dodgers split a doubleheader with St. Louis, Skipper Leo Durocher today managed to whisper that the National League pennant couldn't be won on a single day, anyway, and that, just as he had expected, the championship will be decided sometime between now and the season's end.

The Lip, loquacious as ever, explained:

"We couldn't have won nor lost the pennant yesterday, no matter if we had taken both games or blown them."

RED BIRD CAMP OPENS THURSDAY FOR OHIO YOUTHS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Details in connection with the annual baseball try-out camp of the Columbus Red Birds are virtually complete, and the number of inquiries indicates that an enrollment of aspirants will reach several hundred when the opening roll is called Thursday. With a group of well-known St. Louis Cardinals scouts on hand, boys from three states are slated to go through three days of running, throwing, batting and actual play in an effort to prove themselves worthy of consideration for careers in minor league baseball.

With such scouts as Frank Rickey, Charles "Pop" Kelchner, Marty Purtell, Walter Shannon and others on hand, boys who have possibilities of developing into a Johnny Mize, an Enos Slaughter, a Ray Sanders or a Jimmy Brown will be observed by men who started such famous figures in baseball. There will be three days of intensive work, with a number of practice games on the books for Saturday. At the end of the camp boys who are considered ready to start careers in organized baseball will be given such opportunity.

Boys need not register in advance but are requested to report with uniforms and ready to play next Thursday. Boys from outside of Columbus are expected to make their own lodging arrangements, but there is no registration fee.

"Naturally, it would have been a big help to win two."

"But as I see it, the flag will be won or lost over the run of the season, the big thing being to win more games than the Cardinals over the next three weeks."

Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards tacitly agreed on that point, and asserted further that the Cardinals, now ready to return to their own back yard, "definitely can't be counted out."

A crowd of 39,107, barely below the season's tops, witnessed the Flatbush Flock score an 8 to 3 victory in the first game and throw the nightcap to the wind and the rain which threatened to wash it out after eight innings with the Cards ahead, 3 to 1.

Curt Davis Tough

Curt Davis handcuffed St. Louis with seven hits in the first contest. Six of the safeties were secured by Don Padgett and Johnny Mize. The Dodgers were rolling along toward a deadlock in the final when Pee Wee Reese's double miscue in the eighth helped the Cards break the 0-0 pitching duel between Brooklyn's Fred Fitzsimmons and St. Louis' Morton Cooper with a three-run assault.

The net result of the four-game series, a pair of doubleheaders that were split even—Stephen was that the flock remained a game and a half ahead, and that both clubs will carry their pennant quest "over the run of the season," as the Lip expressed it.

Brooklyn entertains Cincinnati and St. Louis goes against New York at the Polo Grounds tonight. Elsewhere in the National League yesterday, Cincinnati and New York halved a bargain bill, the Giants taking the first 7 to 4, and the Reds winning the finale, 5 to 4, with a three-run rally in the eighth after which the game was called by darkness.

Boston and Pittsburgh also split a pair. The Braves won the first 4 to 3, then the Pirates came through 6 to 1.

Only Chicago managed to gain a notch. The Cubs trounced the futile Phillies twice, 5 to 4 and 11 to 3, Dom Dalesandro batting in seven runs in the nightcap.

The status changed somewhat in the American circuit, Boston thrashed Cleveland, 9 to 4, and scrambled over the Indians into third place. Philadelphia tripped Detroit Tigers twice, 9-1 and 2-1, to move into sixth place ahead of the St. Louis Browns who were polished off, 3 to 0, by Washington and Dutch Leonard.

New York and Detroit were officially idle, but, if it is of any significance, the Yankees were bested, 2-1, by their Kansas City farm hands and a 21-year-old rookie named Milo Candini.

HARRY SHORT'S HORSE, JESSIE RECTOR, WINNER

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27 — A strong field of 16 will face the barrier in the $2,000 Ohio Pacing Derby, feature of today's harness racing program at the 91st annual Ohio State Fair. The purse is the largest of the meeting.

Other important stakes today include the $1000 2:20 pace and the $1,000 Director of Agriculture stakes for two-year olds.

Two Columbus owned horses won the feature races at yesterday's running before 6,500 fans. Harry Short's Jessie Rector, driven by Bob Plaxico, won the two-year-old pace, while C. A. Mitchell's Jack High won the 2:22 trot in three consecutive heats.

Frisky Direct, owned by Robert Solt, of Bucyrus, and driven by Trainer Bunny Sturgeon, raced to victory in two heats of the second division of the juvenile stakes. The Woodsman, owned by R. N. Eastman, of Anderson, Ind., won all three heats of the 2:17 pace with a 2:06 1/4 for the middle mile as the best time of the afternoon.

Lesnevich Takes Title Over Tami Mauriello

By Jack Mahon

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Pudgy Gus Lesnevich, Cliffside, N. J., is the new light-heavyweight champion of the universe—and of Announcer Harry Balogh's world in particular this morning—but he'll have to prove his right to the title all over again on November 14.

The blonde Russian body puncher won the 175-pound crown on a split decision over Tami Mauriello, 21-year-old Bronx kid, last night but the verdict was so unpopular Promoter Mike Jacobs promptly got the boys to agree to an encore.

LEADERS—American: Kelle, New York, 32; Williams, Boston 28; DiMaggio, New York, 27. National: Camilli, Brooklyn 27; Nicholson, Chicago, and Ott, New York 23 each.

LEADING PITCHERS—AMERICAN LEAGUE—Ruffing, New York 14-6; Gomez, New York, 12-4; Feller, Cleveland, 21-11. NATIONAL—Kist, St. Louis 9-0; Riddle, Cincinnati 13-2; White, St. Louis 16-4.

HEROES AND GOATS—HEROES—Sam Chapman, who clouted his 26th homer of the season with the bases loaded for Philadelphia's A's against Detroit; Irving Hadley, whose rescue hurling helped the A's trounce the Tigers in the nightcap of their doubleheader; Don Dallessandro, who homered with the bases loaded and rapped in seven of 11 runs to help the Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia; Heber Newsome, Red Sox pitcher who helped win his own game against Cleveland with a three-run double; Curt Davis, who felled St. Louis as Brooklyn won the first game against the Cards; Morton Cooper, Cardinal youngster who flipped them to a nightcap triumph.

GOATS—Pee Wee Reese, whose two errors in the ninth, paved the way for St. Louis to beat Brooklyn; Roy Weatherly, Cleveland outfielder whose three errors didn't help the Tribe much against Boston; George Caster and Fred Ostermueller, Browns pitchers, who gave up fewer hits to Washington than their mates collected, but lost, nevertheless.

The finish of a sporadic fight saw Announcer Balogh pull a prize boner which caused the greatest confusion seen here in many moons. Mauriello, after trailing early and surviving a nine count in the second round, had closed fast and apparently had won the fight.

Most of the crowd thought so and when Balogh announced "the winner and new light-heavyweight champion of the world" the mob, which was all for Tami, let up a long scream. Tami rushed across the ring and was congratulated by Lesnevich.

Balogh roared for order, a look of great pain spreading across his highly manicured kisser. The crowd wouldn't let up. Tami stood in the center of the ring, a big smile on his battered and sweat-soaked face and posed with his laughing manager and handlers for the photos.

"Will you please allow me to finish," screamed Balogh. Something was up and finally the crowd quieted down. Then Harry the magnificent said "the winner and new light-heavyweight champion of the world is Gus Lesnevich"—and the panic was on.

Several gamblers who had paid off on Mauriello, an 8-5 underdog started hollering for their customers; Tami almost flopped on his face and his manager, Lefty Remini, looked like he was going to cry. The crowd made several menacing gestures in the direction of the ring but fortunately that was all.

A look at the scorecards showed that Judges Bill Healy and John Potter gave it to Lesnevich. The former scored it 8 and 7; Potter had it eight for Gus, six for Tami and called one even. Referee Eddie Joseph tabbed it ten for Mauriello and five for Gus.

This writer had Tami on top eight rounds to six with one even, but lost, nevertheless.

VANDY TO FACE DODGERS UNDER LIGHTS TONIGHT

BROOKLYN, Aug. 27—The Cincinnati Reds moved over to Brooklyn today for a night game with the league-leading Dodgers tonight and a chance to either make or break themselves.

The Reds, currently in third-place eight and one-half games away from the Dodgers, could get into a contending position by sweeping a series with Brooklyn.

The Reds lost a chance to make up some ground while the Dodgers and Cardinals were splitting a double bill yesterday. The New York Giants belted Bucky Walters out in six innings of the opener of a double bill to win 7 to 4 but the Redlegs came back to take the nightcap, 5 to 4, in eight innings. The second game was halted by darkness.

Manager Bill McKechie indicated he would send Johnny Vander Meer to the mound tonight. Kirby Higbe was to hurl for the league-leaders.

BIRDIES DIVIDE PAIR; BIG JOHN WINS AND LOSES

By International News Service The Toledo Mudhens today kept alive their hopes of landing in the American Association's first division and consequently the playoffs for the right to play in the little world series.

Although blanked, 4 to 0, in the opener of a double bill with the St. Paul Saints by right-hander Bill Swift, the Toledoans came back in the nightcap to take a 4 to 2 decision and thus remain two games out of fourth place. In the nightcap, the Mud Hens rallied in the eighth frame, scoring three runs to come from behind.

The league-leading Columbus Red Birds, meanwhile, were splitting a double bill with Minneapolis. Columbus took the opener, 8 to 0, behind the three-hit pitching of Johnny Grodzicki. The Millers scored three times in the last inning of the five-frame nightcap off the same Grodzicki to take that contest, 6 to 3. Grodzicki was charged with the loss.

In the other league tilt, last-place Milwaukee sent second-place Louisville spinning by a 9 to 3 count. Ray Campbell, although touched for 12 hits and five walks, bore down in the pinches to gain the decision for the Brewers.

GOODMAN MEETS TEXAN IN FIRST TEST FOR TITLE

OMAHA, Neb., August 27 — Former Champion Johnny Goodman, whom Nebraskans claim "can't be beat in his own backyard" — the Omaha field club — teed off today against Bob Riegel of Houston, the ex-Texas State champion, as match play began in the 45th National Amateur Golf tournament.

Riegel just made the championship flight of 64 participants, tying with nine others for the last seven places in the 36-hole qualifying round. In the one-hole playoff, the Texan was one of the seven to escape elimination, and he promised to "upset" Goodman in the first round — just like Goodman scored his historic first round win over Bobby Jones in the National Amateur at Pebble Beach, Cal., in 1929. But the odds were against Riegel.

Sharing the spotlight with the Goodman-Riegel match in the initial round were these 18-hole duels: Medalist Stewart M. "Skip" Alexander of Burlington, N. C., vs. Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, the amateur king of 1936.

Marvin "Bud" Ward of Spokane, Wash., the 1939 champion, vs. Alex Welsh of Rockford, Ill. Defending Champion Dick Chapman of New York and Camp Maxwell, Ala., vs. Louis Jennings of Portland, Ore.

Johnny Burke of Chicago, 1938 National intercollegiate champion and runner-up to Alexander for medalist honors, vs. Bob Cochran of St. Louis.

98,200 TO SEE BEARS, COLLEGE ALL-STARS VIE

Both Squads In Splendid Condition For Game Thursday Night

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—Chicago's greatest sports crowd in more than ten years—98,200—will witness the eighth annual all-star football game in Soldier Field tomorrow night between a fan-picked squad of college stars and the Chicago Bears, national professional grid champions.

The game was a sellout several days ago with 93,200 tickets having been sold, but in addition to the paying customers 5,000 soldiers and sailors of the Sixth Corps Areas will see the game.

Despite the preponderance of All-American talent on the college team, the Bears ruled today as 4 to 1 favorites. Football fans cannot forget that this Bear team is the same one that smashed the Washington Redskins 73 to 0 to cop the National League title last year.

Both squads were reported in good condition for the classic. Sid Luckman, the Bears' ace passer and quarterback, had a slight knee injury, but will start. On the college squad, only Marion Pugh, Texas Aggie quarterback, was ailing. He had a badly swollen elbow but may see limited action.

NUMEROUS OHIO GRADUATES WIN TEACHING JOBS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Graduates of Ohio State University's department of physical education are having no trouble in finding employment in their chosen field.

Out of 25 men graduated in June, 24 are either employed or will be when the public schools open next month, and the one remaining graduate is expecting no difficulty in finding a place. The list of graduates includes the names of several well known Ohio State athletes.

Six of the men are serving as petty officers in the United States Navy, as part of Gene Tunney's recreation division. They are Robert Johnson, John Higgins, Elwood Woodling, and Brud Cleveland, all former Buckeye swimming stars; Vic Marino, ex-grinder, and Myron Overholt. Another graduate in the service is Mike Milkovich, recreation officer attached to the Station Hospital at Fort Knox, Ky.

Three of the graduates will report to colleges this fall. Jimmy Langhurst, last year's football captain, goes to Connecticut Wesleyan as assistant to Wesley Fesler, another former Buckeye star. Robert Kretschmar goes to Hanover College in Indiana, and Richard Clark will be employed by Oberlin College.

Two of the physical education majors will enter YMCA work. Wade McBride at Columbus, and Leonard Kjellman, at Fostoria.

However, the majority of the group will coach and teach physical education in Ohio high schools. These men, and the schools with

High Gridders Resting After First Scrimmage

Circleville High gridders were going through a heavy and lengthy signal drill Wednesday while several athletes were resting up from a pounding taken at Tuesday's practice when contact was permitted for the first time.

Coach Roy Black intended to let up a little after Tuesday's workout, which was not so pleasing to the Tiger mentor. Plays failed to work, and several of the varsity athletes showed lack of knowledge of where they ought to be at the proper time.

The long scrimmage drill brought out several bright points, though, several younger athletes showing that they must be given consideration before this year's varsity crew is definitely set. The Tigers open their season on the local field September 19 with West Jefferson as the opponent.

TWO JOIN GRIDDERS

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 27—Pointing toward their exhibition duel with the Chicago Bears at Ebbets Field September 9, the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional Football League looked to assistance from a pair of recruits. Granville Harrison, former Mississippi State end, and Bill Brown, ex-Texas Tech back, joined the squad yesterday.

AKRON STAR SHOOTING FINE GOLF IN OHIO PGA

CINCINNATI, Aug. 27 — Herman Keiser, long-hitting golf professional from the Akron Firestone Club, held the center of the stage as Ohio's annual P.G.A. tournament moved in the final 36 holes of the 72-hole grind. Shooting phenomenal golf, Keiser ripped par to ribbons at Losantville Country Club to turn in a sensational 69-68—137 for the first half of the tourney and assume a four stroke lead over the field.

Byron Nelson, of Toledo Inverness, the defending champ, and Maurice McCarthy, of Cincinnati, were in second place and within striking distance with 141.

Billy Burke, of Cleveland, fired a 77 in his first round, then withdrew after four holes of the second setto with a blistered heel.

Senate Finance Committee
May Boost House Bill

from 10 to 65 cents a gallon, $10,800,000, adopted.

Automobiles, seven to 15 percent; trucks, buses, five to 10 percent; parts, accessories, five to 10 percent, $167,200,000.

Joint returns, with modification for earned income, $258,000,000, rejected.

Limit percentage depletion for oil to cost of depletion or value as of March 1, 1913, $86,000,000, to be acted on.

Cigarettes increase $3.25 to $4.00 a thousand, $112,800,000.

In addition treasury experts are to submit new rates on excess profits, higher than those adopted in the House, to yield perhaps $300,000,000 more.

There is a possibility, members said, that some new taxes may be approved by the committee and some of the excise taxes contained in the House bill may be eliminated. A determined fight is to be made to eliminate the $5 annual automobile use tax.

After accepting the general principle of the House excess profits tax, the committee still had to act on rates and some special rules. A squabble ensued over the House 10 percent special income tax on corporations which show an increased profit, but do not earn enough to pay excess profits.

Steel Mills Eyed

This provision is designed to hit such firms as steel companies which had operated at virtually no profit before the defense boom, and now enjoy earnings although not in the excess profits tax class.

The tax is fought on the ground that it penalizes many struggling corporations, which just now are getting out of the "red" and into the profit class.

The committee approved a boost to 20 percent in the tax on safety deposit boxes. Present tax is 11 percent.

It also adopted these rates on still wines: not over 14 percent alcohol, 10 cents per gallon; 14 to 21 percent alcohol, 35 cents; 21 to 24 percent alcohol, 65 cents. Rates on sparkling wines were boosted, and brandy was taxed at $4 a gallon, the same as liquor generally.

The committee approved House increased tax rates on tires and tubes and repeal of practically all exemptions from the admissions tax, except for state and county fairs.

MOTHER, THREE CHILDREN DEAD

found on the first floor which the Moreys rented in the three-story frame house. The nude bodies of the children lay on the floor. In a nearby room on an army cot was the body of the wife and mother, clad in a house coat.

Neighbors who live above the small apartment said they heard screams shortly before dawn. The children's parents were said by neighbors to have been involved in frequent quarrels over Morey's drinking habits.

Poverty had laid its cold hand on the Morey home. The four rooms were devoid of rugs, practically barren of furniture. The children, apparently, had slept on the floor.

A complete picture of the sequence of events preceding the tragedy was still being sought by police. They learned, however, that yesterday when the postman brought a relief check to the home the four children were playing on the floor.

Husband Took Check

Their grandmother sat in a rocking chair as Morey's wife tore open the envelop. The check fluttered out and the ex-patriot snatched it, put on his hat and went out. A short time later the grandmother left.

At the hospital, Morey told this story:

"I got home at 1:30 a. m. I went to sleep with my wife. Our baby, Paul, was between us.

"I woke about 5 or 5:30 when I felt a blow on my head. It stunned me. As I got off the bed I fell to the floor.

"My wife was not in bed. I started to look for her. Then I saw Junior walking, blood all over him. Next I saw my wife at the bedroom door. I saw her cut her throat with a knife.

"I went to call for help and the police came soon."

On a dilapidated dresser in the bedroom police found the note, scrawled in a woman's hand on a piece of writing paper. It said, in part:

"This is the best way out. Don't touch anything. We are all suffering from a disease."

Police planned further questioning of Morey as soon as he had recovered sufficiently from his injuries which were not expected to prove serious.

"From every indication," said Assistant District Attorney Edward Heffernan, "it looks like suicide in which the mother cut her own throat after killing her children."

TRAILERS DOT COUNTRY

CHICAGO—New trailer populations springing up in defense industry and army camp areas which are short of housing accommodations are emphasizing the trailer regulation problem for local and state governments, a survey of the American Municipal Association showed recently.

While trailer dwellers have not increased at the rate once predicted, approximately 250,000 houses on wheels are now in use, and there are about 2,000 trailer "settlements" in the country, according to the association.

'CHUTING IS NEWEST SPORT

DETROIT—Youthful Detroiters have taken to the latest of practical sports—parachuting. Formed only a few months ago, the Chapin Parachute Club already boasts 16 members, all having stamped the daredevil organization with approval by their motto "It's fun and a thrill."

Anthony Renne, an expert parachutist and present instructor, said "Fun and thrills are not the only goals of the club. The possible need of skilled parachutists in national defense is not lost sight of."

The Japanese seem to have a queer notion that they can "save face" by robbing their neighbors and killing a lot of people.

AFL WINS RIGHT RITES WILL BE TO REPRESENT THURSDAY FOR DETROIT'S DSR MISHAP VICTIM

DETROIT, Aug. 27—Retaining the privileges it has held for 40 years, the A. F. of L. today defeated the CIO 3.076 to 1.925 in an election held to determine which union should have exclusive collective bargaining rights in the Department of Street Railways.

The election was conducted by the city election commission. The election, which lasted for 24 hours, was a point in the agreement which settled the five day strike the A. F. of L. conducted against the DSR last week. The A. F. of L. had held the bargaining rights for 40 years previously and it was only recently the CIO attempted to make inroads in the railway department.

ities, telling of an incessant and gigantic battle along the "whole front."

An interesting development in the Iranian campaign was the British announcement that Germans and Italians were among those taken prisoner when the British occupied Bandar Shahpur, on the Persian Gulf. But the announcement did not say whether the Germans and Italians were combatants.

Russian cossack troops striking down on either side of the Caspian Sea announced occupation of Tabriz and Ardebil, important transportation centers.

The British said Indian and other forces have taken a huge pocket 40 or more miles deep in the oil section between Khanaguin and Khorramshahr, the whole area around Bandar Shahpur and Abadan in the south has been mopped up and the British-Indian forces are moving on northward.

Turkey Menaced

The Turkish situation also grew more acute. Reports from Istanbul received in Moscow said four more German divisions have arrived on the border between axis-controlled Greece, and Turkey.

The Far Eastern crisis was heightened by still other developments. Possibility was seen in Washington that American military brains may be used to help the war strategy of both China and Russia in their respective struggles against axis aggression.

This possibility arose from the White House announcement concerning the forthcoming dispatch of American military missions to China and Russia and to make recommendations regarding types and quantities of American war aid needed by those countries.

Meanwhile, the British and Russian invasion of Iran apparently was progressing at the prescribed pace. A Simla communique said British and Indian troops are "advancing methodically" into western and southwestern Iran and Russia announced Soviet troops had captured the northern Iranian communications center of Tabriz. An Iranian communique, however, claimed the invaders had been held back at "some points."

156 Planes Wrecked

Moscow announced continued fighting along the entire Eastern Front and said 156 Nazi planes had been destroyed in a 48-hour period, 101 of them in the Leningrad area alone.

Ohio State Fair Setting Record For Attendance

More Than 40,000 Go Through Gates On Fourth Day; Racing Attracts Many;
Governor, Family Win Attention

With the spotlight of interest swinging to the race-track, Ohio's 91st State Fair swung into its fifth day Wednesday with fair officials predicting flatly that all attendance records for the week would be smashed before the fair closes Friday night.

Despite rain at noon and threatening skies throughout the day, yesterday's paid attendance was 40,071, a gain of 1,456 over the figure for the Tuesday of 1940. Coupled with the 30,312 gain of the first three days, it led Fair Manager Win Kinnan to declare:

"This is the biggest fair we ever had. Our attendance figures will be smashed without a doubt."

Highlight on Wednesday's program was the $2,000, 2:15 Ohio Pacing derby, richest event on the five-day harness racing program. In addition, racing fans will witness the Director of Agriculture's stake, a $1,000 event for two-year-old trotters and the $1,000, 2:20 pace, in addition to the lesser 2:14 trot.

Honored on the day's fair-wide program were Director of Agriculture John T. Brown, Women's Federated Clubs, the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, Garden clubs, and the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

However, a hole in the center of the machinery field still held the attention of the younger fairgoers, for it was there that Governor Elicker turned the first spadeful of earth for the new, $350,000 junior fair building, designed to provide living quarters for 1,600 young exhibitors at future fairs.

Those who attended the groundbreaking ceremonies conceded they had seen everything when the governor or, who always is immaculately dressed, took off his coat and hat, rolled up his sleeves, and turned the spadeful of dirt with the skill of an expert gardener. It was the governor's first public appearance without a suit-coat, his aides admitted.

Spade Inscribed

The spade he used was later inscribed by the chief executive: "To the Ohio Junior Fair—to the boys and girls of Ohio, Good Luck and Prosperity. Sincerely, John W. Elicker." It will be enshrined in the new building, which the governor promised would be ready for use next year—"barring our possible inability to get materials due to the priorities of the national defense program."

The governor's 11-year-old son, Jackie, was a somewhat bored spectator of the proceedings. He confided later to a reporter that he would much rather go on the rides of the midway or fish in the conservation commission's lagoon, where children are allowed to fish for 45 minutes or until they catch three fish.

Scheduled for judging today were Merinos, Oxford Downs, Hampshire Downs and Corriedales in the sheep barn; shorthorns and guernseys in the coliseum and poland chinas and hamphires in the swine barn. Percheron horse judging also will be in the coliseum.

Jay Farceur, 10-year-old Belgian stallion owned by Kenfleur Farms of H. C. Horneman, Danville, Ill., nosed out his two-year-old son of Kenfleur's Jay Farceur, owned by Ohio State University, to win the grand championship yesterday. It marked his third straight winning of the title. Reserve senior champion and champion stallion bred and owned in Ohio was Don De Saintes, owned by Harvey Hoewischer, Sidney, O. Futurity winner was Kenfleur's Eddie Farceur, yearling son of Jay Farceur and owned by Kenfleur Farm.

Other Judging

In the Belgian mare judging, Julius Horvath & Son, Detroit, had the grand champion and also senior champion mare, Albert L. Myers & Son, Convoys, O., had the best mare, any age. Harvey Hoewischer, of Sidney, had the champion mare bred and owned in Ohio.

In the sheep-shearing contest last night, Ross Welch, of Radnor; John Frey, Plain City, and Lloyd Spies, of Liberty Center, finished one, two, three in that order. Finals in the sheep shearing contest are scheduled for Friday morning.

Swine—Lisle Farms Co., Lisle, Ill., senior champion Chester White boar; Circle Oak Farms, Pikeston, O., grand champion Chester White boar; Lisle Farms Co., grand champion Chester White sow and senior champion Chester White sow.

At last night's horse show, the three-year-old mare Smile Again, owned by Dodge Stables, Rochester, Mich., walked off with top honors, copping the $500 junior five-gait stake.

Mrs. Loula Long Combs, of Lees Summit, Mo., with her Invasion, veteran bay gelding, topped a small but select field of heavy harness horses over 15.2 hands high.

Campbell, owned by Mrs. A. S. Kelly, Medfield, Mass., won in the classification for three-gaiters over 15 hands and not exceeding 15.2. Lucky Nira, 8-year-old black mare owned by E. F. Luckenbach, of Sands Point, Long Island, captured the three-gait combination while Hickory Grove, owned by Mrs. A. E. Reuben, of Toledo, O., won the open jumping in which performance only counted.

BILL TO GOVERN PRICE PAID FOR SMOKES IS LAW

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27 — The Ward bill to ban use of cigarettes as loss leaders by Ohio merchants and thereby boost the price 1 to 2 cents a package went into effect today.

The measure, which a Toledo drug company has threatened to test in the courts, was introduced in the state senate last winter by Sen. Grant T. Ward (R) of Columbus. It passed the upper house March 5 by a 36 to 0 vote. The lower house voted 108 to 6 for it on May 15.

Briefly, the bill is intended to prevent sale of cigarettes at cut or less than cost prices in order to pull customers into stores where other attractively displayed merchandise marked for handsome profit will make the unwary pop-eyed enough to use some of their folding money for more than tobacco.

Its sponsors hope to make it work by requiring that all cigarettes be sold at no less than cost plus 6 percent.

Some merchants contend that it will force the price up two cents a package.

However, some stores that have been selling cigarettes at 14 cents contend they can continue to do so and still more say they will be able to continue selling at 15 cents. Actually, a large percentage of cigarettes being sold in the state have been bringing 17 cents for some time because they are marketed by machine, and three cents change is returned to the customer with the package.

Many dealers feel that if state and federal taxes are increased the price of cigarettes will go to the point where the smokers will cut down for economy's sake and both sales and tax revenue will fall.

TREASURY LISTS HUGE INCREASES IN MANY ITEMS

Senate Finance Committee May Boost House Fund By 800 Millions

GASOLINE, BEER HIGHER

Automobiles, Cigarettes May See Rates Up; Changes In Income Exemptions Sure

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—The Senate Finance Committee today studied suggestions of some members that the record-breaking new tax bill be boosted to $4,000,000,000, as the treasury submitted possible new taxes to yield approximately $800,000,000.

The committee, chiefly by slashing individual income tax exemptions, has raised the total of the bill to $3,608,000,000 with many vital sections still to be finally acted on. The bill was estimated to yield $3,236,700,000 as it passed the House.

"There is considerable talk of increasing the total of the bill, but I do not know whether it will be done," said Sen. La Follette (P) Wis. "There is general recognition that it is inadequate to meet the financial situation of the government."

"The bill may be increased, but I doubt if it will be much more than $3,500,000,000," said Sen. Connally (D) Tex.

Suggestions Voiced

Taxes suggested by the treasury in event the committee decided to raise the total included:

Lowering exemptions to yield $303,000,000, which has been adopted.

Special community property state rule, $48,300,000, adopted in principle.

Increase estate and gift taxes either $125,000,000 or $195,000,000, rejected.

Gasoline, one cent a gallon additional tax $255,000,000. The committee has rejected a one-half cent increase.

Beer, $6.00 to $7.00 per barrel, $52,800,000, to be acted on.

"Help me! Help me stop the blood on Junior!"

Bread Knife Used

In the house police found a blood-stained bread knife with a keen-edged blade. An ax handle was found in the living room. A blood-stained axe-head was found near the kitchen door.

At Methodist Hospital an emergency operation was performed in an effort to save young William's life while first aid treatment was administered the dazed father who bore wounds on his head, face and hands.

Opening of Supply Route Seen in Iran Attack

OPENING of a new line of supply from the United States to the British Middle East and to Russia is seen if the Anglo-Soviet invasion of Iran succeeds. Allied control of the country would make it possible for American supplies to be shipped across the Pacific, the Indian Ocean and the Persian gulf rather than across the perilous Atlantic. Indicated on the above map are the points of attack on Iran by the British and Russians.

GENEVA REPORTS EFFORT TO OUST PETAIN'S REGIME

GENEVA, Aug. 27—The authoritative newspaper Journal of Geneva today announced severe measures by the Vichy regime of unoccupied France against Communists and Anarchists accused of organizing an actual revolution under the guise of a Nationalist movement.

There were no details regarding the number of persons involved in the reported coup.

The movement apparently was aimed at displacement of the regime of Chief of State Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, who recently announced his determination to continue collaboration with Nazi Germany.

Reports of an apparently widespread subversive movement in unoccupied France reached Geneva at a moment when International News Service had completed an exhaustive investigation of conditions in the Nazi-occupied area, where the foreign press has frequently reported actual uprisings against the Nazi army of occupation.

The results of this investigation may be summed up as follows:

There is trouble in occupied France (and now obviously in the unoccupied area as well.)

There have been numerous arrests, sabotage incidents and shooting affairs.

But the gravity of the situation appears to have been exaggerated. Swiss newspapers themselves, which still maintain unusually good contacts with both Paris and Vichy, have been exceedingly conservative.

The Paris press itself had admitted a roundup of 6,000 Jews as alleged ringleaders responsible for unrest and sabotage. This is a fairly large number, but Paris, even under the swastika, is still a very large city.

CANBERRA, Australia—Parties supporting the government of Prime Minister R. G. Menzies today rejected a demand by the Labor party that the cabinet resign. As a result of this decision, the Menzies government will remain in office.

SHANGHAI—Major Kunio Akiyama, Japanese army spokesman, today denied reports that Japan intends to blockade Shanghai's International settlement or the French concession. He also denied reports that Japanese troops intend to occupy foreign areas of the city by force of arms.

VICHY—Diplomatic sources in Vichy reported today that formal negotiations are under way for cessation of hostilities in Iran. Shah Riza Khan Pahlavi was reported to have informed the British and Russian ministers at Teheran that he was agreeable to a "provisionary, friendly occupation" of his country.

MOSCOW—Four more German divisions have arrived on the Greco-Turkish frontier, Istanbul reports received in Moscow said today.

WAUSEON, Aug. 27—Lieut. James D. Edwards, 22, attached to the 46th field artillery at Fort Custer, Mich., today was suffering neck injuries, received when the one-fourth ton "Jeep" truck in which he was riding left the road near Wauseon, O.

Dr. R. W. Reynolds, of nearby Fayette, O., reported the injury as serious. The truck was part of a caravan, but the remainder of the trucks were not involved in the accident.

The accident occurred yesterday morning.

DR. BUSHONG NAMED COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Dr. R. E. Bushong, state commissioner of mental diseases since July 1, 1940, today was named superintendent of the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane.

'Objector' Leaves For U. S. Camp

Howard L. Wright, 21, Of Derby, Assigned To North Carolina

NINE TO BE CALLED UP

Contingent To Be Inducted Sometime After Sept. 17

Howard Louis Wright, 21, of Derby, Pickaway County's first conscientious objector to armed service, started on his way to a government camp Wednesday after receiving his final papers from the Selective Service board.

Young Wright is a son of the Rev. and Mrs. J. C. Wright, his father being Methodist pastor at Derby. He was classified in 4-F when he informed the board that he objected to armed service. He registered last October.

The youth was to leave Circleville during the afternoon enroute to Buck Creek Camp, Marion, McDonald County, North Carolina, this camp being set up for conscientious objectors.

The Selective Service board also announced a tentative call for eight white draftees and one Negro youth to fill a quota to be called sometime after September 17. The definite date for the induction is not yet known.

The board revealed that several of the eight men to be taken will be those who registered last July 1 after they had become 21 years of age. Just how many 21-year-olds will go is not certain, but James H. Nungester, Circleville Route 1, a volunteer, is certain to be one of them.

The Negro youth will be Milton Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Henry, East Franklin Street, who is also a volunteer.

The call for the nine draftees is the first since August 12 when two were ordered to service. The last call was August 18 when 18 were ordered to report.

Mr. McRoberts has been in China for the last four years, and has had considerable experience on the Burma Road and at the French Indo-China border, both of these districts being in the world news at this time.

The speaker's address in United States is at Winona Lake, Ind.

Tokyo Wants Assurance That Gasoline Will Be Used Only Against Germany, And Not Retained At Vladivostok

GREAT NAZI-RUSS CONFLICT RAGING

British Air Force Scores Heavily In Night Raids On Cologne Industries; Allies Move Deeper Into Iran

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27—Japanese Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura today requested and was granted an appointment with Secretary of State Cordell Hull. His action led to the belief that he may be planning to make the diplomatic representations which Tokyo dispatches said were being lodged in Washington against shipments of American war supplies to Russia via Vladivostok.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

American aviation gasoline bound for Russia provided fuel for explosive Japanese anger today. Tokyo announced that strong representations had been made to both Washington and Moscow against shipments of huge quantities of airplane gas to Siberia.

As the Far Eastern crisis flared anew, Britain and Russia reported swift advances on four major fronts in Iran against little resistance. Germany asserted that the whole 22nd Soviet Army had been wiped out between Smolensk and Lake Ilmen, with 40,000 Russian troops killed and 30,000 taken prisoner.

And the RAF staged one of the war's greatest sweeps against Nazi-occupied France. The sky over Britain was described as virtually filled with planes, following night attacks on Cologne and other Reich industrial areas which were "on a somewhat larger scale than of late."

Japan's representations to America and Russia did not have quite the high-octane content of the gasoline being sped to Vladivostok from San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Nippon asked for either a cessation of the shipments, or a Russian guarantee that the fuel would not be retained in Vladivostok, and would be used only against Germany.

Tokyo urged the powers to LONDON, Aug. 27—Full Russo-British military control of Iran forms the basis of terms on which the allies are willing to suspend hostilities, a British government spokesman revealed today. So far, he indicated, the Iranian Shah's government and the invaders still are far from a settlement.

"consider Japan's position in view of her alliance with the axis, and her neutrality pact with the Soviets."

State Department quarters in Washington reported that Japanese officials have "expressed concern" to Ambassador Grew over the fuel shipments.

Moscow served a "hands off" warning on Japan. The Soviet government told Tokyo that the U. S. S. R. would regard any attempt to hinder Russian trade with the United States via Siberia as an act inimical to Russia.

Germany told of "uncommonly bloody losses" to the Russians in a battle of several days' duration on the Smolensk-Lake Ilmen front. The fight ended with the Nazi capture of the town of Velikiye Lugi.

Whether the end of the thumb will be lost or whether it can be saved will not be known for several days.

MILADY WARNED DRESS PRICES TO BE BOOSTED

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—The retail prices of dresses will shoot up 20 percent in the near future—despite the establishment of price ceilings on cotton and rayon by the federal government—Morris Kolchian, executive director of the Affiliated Dress Manufacturers Association, said today.

A price rise, he said, is "compulsory" because the cost of materials and labor have gone up. Kolchian pointed out that the federal price ceilings were not imposed on various textiles and yarns until prices had increased considerably. The ceilings, he said, are higher than the prices manufacturers paid for the same materials last month.

RAIN IS CAUSE OF ACCIDENTS IN COUNTY AREA

More than Inch Recorded Tuesday Afternoon By Federal Gauge

WORKMAN, 23, IS HURT

Several Motor Collisions Happen On Route 23, South Of City

A heavy rain Tuesday afternoon in which more than an inch fell on the Circleville district was a contributory cause of several accidents, one of which sent a South Bloomingville man to Berger Hospital suffering from a facial injury and several more of which resulted in motorists narrowly escaping serious injuries.

The rain totaled, according to the government gauge, 1.04 inches, and caused small streams to leave their banks temporarily and partially blocked several of Circleville's thoroughfares when the water came so fast that storm sewers were unable to take it off the streets fast enough.

Gilfred L. McNichols, 23, of South Bloomingville, was rushed to Berger Hospital at 6:15 o'clock Tuesday evening after he was struck on the head by a heavy skid being used to lower gas pipe into a ditch.

The Anderson Brothers Co., placing a gas pipeline in the South Bloomingville-Laurelville district, was working its men overtime Tuesday evening after the storm in an effort to get pipe into three-foot ditches before cave-ins might have forced additional excavations. The ditches were partially water-filled and skids and ropes were wet.

One of the ropes used on a mechanical hoist became unhooked, causing one of the skids to break and strike McNichols in the face. He has a deep gash under one eye and is considerably bruised.

Lowell Leasure of Hillsville suffered a fractured left arm and a laceration above the elbow Tuesday night when his car skidded and turned over on Route 159 near the Route 23 intersection in Ross County.

Mr. Leasure was taken to the office of a Chillicothe physician by a passing motorist.

Four Ohioans miraculously escaped serious injury at 4:20 p. m. Tuesday when the car of Paul Lebrun of Lucasville skidded and overturned 12 miles south of Circleville on Route 23. Highway patrolmen said that neither Lebrun nor three passengers in his car was hurt except for minor cuts and bruises.

A Grant Trucking Company vehicle from Jackson skidded off Route 23, 13 miles south of Circleville, and went through a fence into a field. The driver's name was not learned, patrolmen arriving there after he left the scene.

FAMILY MAN, 39, FACES CHARGES IN BANK THEFT

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Michael Bowers, 39, a family man, living in a luxurious home in suburban Forest Hills and accepted as a respectable member of his community, was held in $20,000 bail today as a suspect in the Stroudsburg, Pa., bank holdup of August 5 in which $76,000 was snatched from two bank messengers.

Arrest of Bowers, father of two children, was revealed by the New York offices of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. He was taken to FBI headquarters where he was confronted by five witnesses from Stroudsburg. Later he pleaded not guilty before U. S. Commissioner Jacob A. Visel and was held for further hearing Friday.

The bank robbery was perpetrated by four men, one of whom brandished a sub-machine gun. Ralph Rheinfeis, 37, and Lewis Heiney, 65, the messengers, were disarmed on the street by three of the robbers while a fourth waited

TWO CARS HIT, HORN OF ONE CAUSES EXCITEMENT

Minor damage was done to both cars, but the horn of the automobile of R. S. Braskett of near Ashville created a lot of excitement Tuesday afternoon in up-town Circleville. The horn started to blow when Braskett pulled to the left to avoid hitting the rear of a truck that was backing from the curb, and drove into the bumper of the car of L. M. Mader, Circleville funeral director.

The right front fender of the Braskett car was smashed, while Mader's bumper was damaged.

The accident happened on Court Street opposite the Grand Theatre.

Portsmouth Minister Named Be Delegates Attending Annual Conference

The Rev. C. M. Bowman, pastor of the First United Brethren Church, Portsmouth, was elected Tuesday afternoon by pastors and lay delegates attending the Southeast Ohio Conference at his church as the new conference superintendent. He succeeds the Rev. P. E. Wright of Lancaster, former Circleville pastor.

The Portsmouth minister defeated the Rev. Mr. Wright and the Rev. D. S. Mills of Columbus for the position.

The conference continues through Friday when assignment of pastors will be announced. The Rev. A. N. Gruesser of Circleville and E. S. Neuding, a leader in the local church, are attending the conference. It is expected that the Rev. Mr. Gruesser will be returned to Circleville.

The Rev. Mr. Bowman is a graduate of Otterbein College at Westerville and received the equivalent of his seminary work at Bonebrake Seminary. Before entering the ministry, he taught school for four years. He was pastor of the C. E. Memorial Church at Newark four years, served one year in the Rockbridge charge and was minister of the Washington Avenue U. B. Church, Columbus, for three years. He is a World War veteran. He is married and has three children.

Two hundred pastors and lay delegates are attending the meeting. Rev. M. B. White of Chillicothe was in charge of the memorial service at the Tuesday morning session. He paid tribute to the memory of the Rev. G. F. Conant of the Southeast Ohio District and the Rev. J. H. Harris, prominent in conference work.

SERVICE BOARDS TO FIND POSTS FOR ARMY MEN

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Each of the state's 330 local selective service boards today was charged with the responsibility for restoring jobs to 8000 Ohio soldiers who are expected to be released from service by December.

Lieut. Col. C. W. Goble, state selective service administrator, instructed the boards yesterday to recommend one of their number as chairman of a re-employment program. The chairman's formal appointment will be made by Gov. John W. Bricker.

This chairman, in turn, will name his own voluntary committee from citizen's in the board's area. The committee will be given the use of board facilities to carry on its work.

The selective service law requires that employers re-hire men who were called into service unless they have become unable to handle their old jobs.

If an employer fails to restore a man to his old place, at the same pay and with the same seniority rating, the federal courts may order him to do so upon request by the soldier.

If restoration of a soldier to his old job is impossible, the local committee is to help him find a job, either through the public employment service or private channels.

PARRETT IRKED BY ACCOUNT OF BUS LINE STAND

Washington C. H. Newspaper Says Service To Fayette City Opposed Here

MISUNDERSTANDING CITED

Chamber Of Commerce Man Says He Is In Favor Of Proposed Route

Mack Parrett, secretary of the Circleville Chamber of Commerce, expressed indignation Wednesday over the report published in Washington C. H. concerning his testimony before the State Utilities Commission in its hearing regarding the feasibility of permitting operation of a bus line between Circleville and Washington C. H. that would also serve Williamsport, Atlanta, Clarksburg, New Holland and Frankfort.

"I appeared before the Commission at its request," Parrett said, "and I declared that the bus line would be of much service to persons living in the western part of Pickaway County who wished to shop in Circleville's stores."

He denied opposing the line as announced in the Fayette County seat, where he was quoted as saying the line should go as far as New Holland but not to Washington C. H.

"There is certainly a misunderstanding somewhere," Parrett said.

A Washington C. H. newspaper said that "a new bus line between Washington C. H. and Circleville may be established in the near future if opposition by the Circleville Chamber of Commerce is overcome."

Continuing the account said: "This was the impression Philip Bell reported to the Business and Civic Association following a hearing on the application to set up the line held before the State Utilities Commission."

"Bell represented the B. & C. A. at the hearing last week and made his report which was announced, informally and in general terms, Monday. The Utilities Commission now has the application of the Valley Public Service Co. under advisement and Bell said no indication was given as to when a decision might be announced."

"Bell said he got the impression at the hearing that there were two other companies which operate bus lines elsewhere seeking to take over this same route. He did not, however, say which companies they were."

"The route sought is from Circleville to Washington C. H. through Williamsport, Atlanta, Clarksburg, Frankfort and New Holland. The application was for one round trip each day, with the bus leaving Circleville in the morning and Washington C. H. in the evening. His report to the B. & C. A. did not give the exact time of arrivals and departures."

"Representatives from the intermediate villages were at the hearing, along with those from Circleville and Washington C. H., to tell the commission why and how they thought the proposed bus line could or could not serve their communities."

"The chief opposition to the line came from Circleville, Bell reported. The representative from there, he said, gave his approval to the line as far as New Holland but told the commission he could see no need for extending it into Washington C. H."

NATIVE OF OHIO CHECK TO HELP HELD ON COUNT PUBLIC LIBRARY OF ESPIONAGE SPREAD SERVICE

NEW YORK, Aug. 27 — Kurt Frederick Ludwig, 38, an American, who was arraigned in Spokane, Wash., last night on espionage charges, will be brought to New York within a few days, federal government officials said today.

Ludwig, an Ohio-born salesman, was indicted by a federal grand jury in New York yesterday on a charge of mailing abroad "information as to the disposition, location, numbers and equipment of the United States army."

U. S. Attorney Mathias F. Correa, in announcing the indictment, disclosed that Ludwig, who has spent most of his life in Germany, was arrested last Saturday in Seattle by federal agents as he sought to flee the country.

Ludwig, who authorities said made a trip to Germany as recently as last year, is married and the father of two children. He lives in suburban New York. If convicted, he faces a maximum 10-year prison sentence and a $5,000 fine.

The Nothstine family reunion was held at the local park Sunday, with near fifty present. Basket dinner, short program and visiting made the day a happy one. Officers elected were Walter and Mrs. Hedges for president and vice president and Mrs. Maynard Marion secretary-treasurer. Same place, same date for the 1942 meet, was the order.

Doctor and Mrs. L. C. Schiff spent their annual vacation over the week end, Friday night till Monday at and about the Queen City. Dale, left behind on the outing, is taking his this week visiting Grand Dad and Mom and the state fair.

"If not already owning one, better get busy and find a bathing suit to your liking, 'cause you'll need it". This is the order we received this morning direct from the swimming pool, bond sale solicitors, out at work for only a short time.

Edward Dewey, an Ashville native residing here for many years, was stricken with paralysis Monday, and the report from the home this morning is "some better".

The Clarence Baum family of Corpus Christi, Texas, who have been visiting relatives here for several weeks started for their home Monday accompanied by Mr. Baum who joined them here last week.

Youngster Max Marion, son of Maynard and Mrs. Marion, is recovered from a tonsil operation a few days ago and is all set for his first day at school now but a few days away. Not so pleased with the school going idea either. Remember how last year, a couple of timid kiddies were made to like school going very fine and have been at it steady ever since.

Rio Hato
August 10, 1941

Dear Folk:

I can't remember whether it's been a week or not since I wrote last but I guess it doesn't matter. I am well and still at the gunnery camp.

I got a three day pass and went to Balboa and Panama City last week. Had a swell time. I stayed at the Y. M. C. A. I think I did more sleeping than anything else. I rode a chiva as it is called down here; just a bus back home.

I was the only white person on it. I started the trip last Wednesday and Wednesday must be wash day in Panama for every little stream we crossed the women were washing clothes in the creek. I guess some of them didn't have a change for they were naked. After they washed the clothes they just threw them out on the grass to dry.

We went over the El Vado mountains and through a couple cattle ranches. The cattle look nice and healthy. The cattle were branded and the cowboys rode ponies just like the west, I guess. The only thing was the cowboys were almost as big as their ponies.

We passed women along the road carrying things on their heads. Some of them look like they were carrying 70 or 80 pounds and not once did they drop their loads. They seem to have perfect balance and a good neck.

In the mountains I saw Indians with rings in their nose and ears, and several wild animals. I also saw their homes which were made out of mud walls and grass roofs, or all of grass. The women seem to do all the work. We crossed the canal in a ferry. I think there were about thirty cars

NEW clothes are being bought for young school people at a rapid rate all over the country. Retail sales are decidedly up. That's fine. It means that the children will have nice new things for school, and that their parents have money to pay for them without worrying about it.

There's another thing that should be done for the youngsters before school begins. They should be taken to the family doctor to make sure they are all right, with no defects to hamper them in their great job of learning. He will advise that they see the oculist if he thinks they need that check. He's sure to say they should have the dentist give the teeth a good look and cleaning. Perhaps ears need attention.

Small defects should be caught before they become big ones. Children should be able to face the school year without handicaps easily removed.

SHORTER CREDITS

THE famous line of Omar Khayyam, "Ah take the cash and let the credit go" may yet be our commercial motto, but with a sort of reverse meaning, because we are being urged beyond all things to "Heed the rumble of the distant drum." The crackdown on installment credit isn't absolute, but the credit is to be held within reasonable limits. Eighteen months is now pronounced by the Federal Reserve Board as a reasonable extent of time.

Looking back, we may think this rule is a mild one. Anyway, the American public, meaning all of the customers together, and a good many thousand dealers, too, have been enjoying more credit than is good for us. We owe more millions than it's pleasant to think of. It's time to start whittling them down.

ENOUGH RADIOS

WITH priorities and bottlenecks chasing each other around posts all over the country as well as in Washington, town of the frenzied, it's a source of satisfaction to know that the powers of price management have decreed that there must be enough materials saved out to make radios. There are about 50,000,000 sets now in operation. They can be kept in repair and more may be made.

In the slave countries it's a sin to listen to anything but shouts from your slave-drivers. But in free countries it is a virtue to listen to anything you want to. The democracies assume that along with your soap, tooth-paste and eye-wash, you will get something good—a forum that sets you to using your brain, good music that rests

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WILLKIE TO BE SPOKESMAN

WASHINGTON — The isolationist-packed Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee appointed by Senator Burt Wheeler to investigate "war propaganda" in the movies and radio may get more than it is bargaining for when it tackles the movie makers.

They haven't advertised it, but they are quietly preparing to give the committee a hot head-on reception on all issues it undertakes to raise.

One of the surprises up their sleeve is to have Wendell Willkie as their spokesman and legal counsel.

The Republican leader is an old hand in dealing with congressional committees. Before he entered the political arena he faced many of them and the reputation he won battling them had a lot to do with his meteoric rise in politics.

A militant anti-isolationist, Willkie also has strong personal feelings about Wheeler's hand-picked committee. Willkie considers it a "sneak" investigation and part of an organized isolationist drive to terrorize opponents into silence.

The charge of "sneak" investigation appears well founded. The Senate has not authorized the probe, the committee has no power to subpoena anyone, and is operating wholly on Wheeler's say so as chairman of the Interstate Commerce committee. Four of five members he appointed are fellow isolationist zealots and the fifth, McFarland of Arizona, is a rookie of only seven months' Senate experience.

Further, as if this biased set-up were not enough, the committee also is secretly trying to pick its "victims". It has carefully selected certain movie executives for questioning, apparently with the intention of not permitting others to be heard.

HOW CONGRESSMEN VOTE

The House's refusal to override the President's veto of the $320,000,000 pork-lorded highway bill did not set well with Representative Wilburn Cartwright, Chairman of the Roads Committee. Ordinarily the Oklahoman is genial and tolerant, but he worked long and hard to put over the measure and the rebuff stung him to the quick.

So he sent a letter to his fellow Congressmen telling them caustically what he thought of them.

"It was an interesting tussle," he said, among other jibes. "It was funny to watch Congressmen change back and forth before the vote was announced. Being a Congressman is a great character builder. Some have to take a referendum every day to find their convictions."

"P. S.: There are three things hard to predict — what a mule will do, who a

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles F. Stewart

COULD Russia conceivably be transformed into a democracy? Is it imaginable that it believes it is one now?

Have President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill some sort of a lurking notion that maybe they actually can convert Comrade Stalin into a genuine democrat? Is that one of the things they want to confer with him about, in addition to conferring with him relative to wartime policies?

These questions are being asked in Washington and maybe in London, too.

Even those who ask them don't answer themselves very believably in the affirmative. Nevertheless, it sounds odd to hear such queries put.

It's understandable why the world democracies' leaders deem it wise to aid the Muscovites all they can in the latter's fight with the Axis. Their opinion is that their imperative first consideration is to see Herr Hitler's and Signor Mussolini's types of totalitarianism destroyed, leaving Bolshevism to be worried about later on.

All the same, numerous suggestions have been made that Joe Stalin's system is due to be an exceedingly difficult institution to be democratically dealt with after the war, assuming the Nazis and Fascists' extinction as a result of the pending conflict. Joe, on that supposition, having been very helpful to 'em, it'll be hard for the democracies to resume being dead against him, as heretofore, and yet they certainly won't like Bolshevism any better than ever they did.

But suppose that Joe Stalin himself and the rest of the Bolsheviks have, in the meantime, become democratized.

HINTS FROM MOSCOW

Perhaps it's only wishful thinking, but it's a fact that hints have been coming from Moscow lately that are democratically favorably interpreted.

The Soviet folk manifestly are highly appreciative of their alliance with Britain and of our readiness to send 'em all possible supplies from the United States—on credit, if necessary, and it's made clear that we don't care much whether or not we ever collect.

I've referred already to the flood of news releases that Russian Ambassador Oumansky has been putting out from his Washington headquarters ever since the Nazis launched their attack on his home country and it became apparent to him that our sympathies generally were on his side of the campaign. Before that he hadn't peeped for publicity. Now I (and every correspondent in the capital) get mimeographed pages and pages from him daily, bidding for American support.

And there's scarcely a page that doesn't emphasize Russia as a democracy.

A quotation from the Moscow newspaper, Izvestia, was illustrative. It directly followed conclusion of the Russo-British pact.

This agreement, said Izvestia, as quoted, "puts both great countries in the same group of democratic nations devoted to the noble ideal of the destruction of the most perfidious foe of humanity, culture and civilization."

"Democratic nations!" — mind you. Russia's one of 'em, according to Izvestia and that release of Ambassador Oumansky's.

TRADITIONAL FRIENDSHIP

The ambassador's literature also strongly stresses Russia's traditional friendship for the United States, dating back to czarist days and to sociability of the two countries across Behring Strait.

But that Communistic Russia's a democracy is a different thing. Is it just dressing itself up in a democratic disguise in an emergency, or is it honestly flopping democratically?

Russia's revolution from czarism is being quite intensely analyzed.

Originally it was intended to be an anarchist revolution. Anarchism is the ultimate of democracy — so violently ultimate that no rational student of society believes that it can be made to work. It didn't work in Russia's case, but drifted into a despotism about as bad as the czar's.

Now is it trying to readjust itself into something sensible, along democratic lines?

That's what Washington, and probably London, are wondering.

Epilepsy Is Not a Mental Disease

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

● The Laymen's League against Epilepsy, established at the Harvard Medical School, Boston, is an organization composed of the best-informed, public-minded physicians, and has as its object to keep the public informed about the progress on epilepsy and related diseases.

More than that, its object is to carry our modern knowledge of epilepsy to those who need it, to dispel the taboos and superstitions which exist, and to try to teach the people who have these periodic spells that they are not outcasts from society or mentally deranged, and that there is nothing to be ashamed of in this condition any more than there is in any other ordinary disease.

In pursuance of this objective, an extremely valuable expression of the modern viewpoint on this condition is contained in a book called Science and Seizures by Dr. William G. Lennox of the Harvard Medical School (Harper & Bros., Paul B. Hoeber, 1941). This book treats not only of epilepsy but also of migraine headaches which are seizures of a somewhat related kind. Most of the taboos and popular ideas about these conditions are fully discussed.

Samples: Epilepsy is not a mental disease, but a physical disease. It is manifest by "disordered electric currents of the brain."

Is Epilepsy Hereditary?

Is epilepsy hereditary? This is a frequent question which corresponds write to me. Statistical studies show that not more than twenty per cent of patients give a history of seizures in known relatives. It will not do, however, to minimize the possibility of hereditary epilepsy. If an epileptic has four children, there is one chance out of ten that one of these children will have seizures. If there are two children, the chances are one out of twenty. About one out of twenty-six relatives of the average patient has seizures.

Two great contributions have recently been made to the study of epilepsy by Boston physicians. One is a machine which can record the electric pulsations of the brain. These are picked up from the scalp and made to write a line. All people subject to epilepsy produce a pattern on this record. Different types are also recorded by the instrument. It pictures both danger signals and progress.

The second discovery is the use of dilantin to prevent or minimize the epileptic attacks.

There are many different kinds of epilepsy and there are many different causes for the seizures. The most important thing for a person subject to seizures to know is that a great deal of help can be given by the modern physician with modern methods. There is nothing to be ashamed of in the condition and anyone who is subject to it should consult a physician. The doctor can give him a great deal of help. Mental impairment may be the result of frequent seizures and when these are properly understood, the state of mind is improved.

A remarkable instance is that of a twenty-three-year-old man who had frequent seizures since childhood. He never learned to read or write. With the administration of the medicine, dilantin, which stopped his seizures, the man began to learn with great rapidity and in the course of six months, his mental age rose from six years to a level of ten years.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. R.: "Is the drinking of buttermilk recommended on a reducing diet?"

Answer: Yes

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

E. S. M.: "Is living in a three room apartment doing justice to a small child? This question is of interest to many married couples with a small child on a limited income. We have a bedroom, living room, bath, and a good-sized kitchen, also a back porch with plenty of sunshine. Our child sleeps twelve hours every night and two hours during the day, but is the noise harmful to her even though she sleeps well? Naturally, we do not have any big parties but she is conscious of low talking when friends come in. We cannot live in isolation and shun our friends, but are we doing an injustice to her?"

Answer: It seems to me this child is decidedly not underprivileged, and I am afraid you are falling into the habit that many mothers acquire of fussy apprehension.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet costs for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Hayfever," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER THIRTY-FIVE

WHEN SCOTT told Ylena that Tate was married, she got to her feet slowly, then, because her legs refused to uphold her, immediately sat down again. She leaned against the back of the davenport in a dejected position, not looking at Scott, and the humiliated red surged over her face and neck.

Scott said nervously, "I'd have told you before, Ylena, but I thought you knew. In New York, you said, 'Let's not talk about Tate.' I thought—" He began to stammer, wholly miserable. "It sounded as if you did—the disparaging you talked about his ring the other night—and then, just now in the taxi when I realized you didn't—oh, Ylena, I couldn't let you go back to La Madera not knowing."

She put her hand on his in a comforting gesture. "Of course not, Scott. You did the right thing." Her voice was toneless. "But I can't understand why someone didn't wire me."

"After all, it is Tate Cromwell's obligation, Ylena."

"Yes, you're right. You're right about everything. And now I don't have to hurry home, do I? There's no reason for me to hurry home. Not one real reason. We can stay as long as we want to." Without looking at it, she slipped off the marquise diamond and put it into her purse. In a more rapid voice she continued, "Don't tell me anything more about it, Scott. I don't want to hear—don't tell me who it is, and please stop looking so worried. I shan't be troublesome. I'm going to be all right; but let's do something! Let's do something!"

"All right, Ylena." He took her arm and pulled her up. "Anything, Ylena, but what?"

She gave him a spunky little smile. "I think the first thing is to get our luggage off that boat."

They lunched at El Patio in a court filled with flaming bougainvillea that climbed over blue trellises to hang in scarlet and green clusters against yellow walls. "Fat, important acting pigeons strutted back and forth, almost keeping time to the music of the guitar players and serenaders. Conversationally it was a silent luncheon, with both Scott and Rose watching Ylena who, in turn, watched nothing.

At siesta time, shades drawn against the blindingly white sun, Ylena lay quietly in their cool, darkened room, so that Rose would think she was napping, and made herself face a situation which so far had been an unbelievable, whirling nightmare. Tate had said he would make her sorry. And he had! She ached with being sorry. Worse still, he had insulted her and made her ridiculous in La Madera, a realization that braced her pride to the extent that she began to plan more rationally.

Until she felt powerful enough to face the curious with a definite savoir-faire, she would not return to La Madera. She would obey Scott Hamilton's wild whirling suggestion and remain in this paradise of "do-nothing." She would relax in the velvet luxury of the tropics and live each moment for that moment, enjoying to the utmost, each flower, each breeze from the ocean, each bite of food, each drink, all with no thought of duty. And certainly—to herself she made a determined vow—with no thought of Tate. She fell asleep. In the late afternoon Scott's telephone awoke her.

"You and Rose come on and let's go places. I've rented a car." Immaculate in white linen and a fine looking new Panama hat, he was waiting before their hotel.

At the curb was a small sedan with a young Cuban at the wheel, who gave a smile rivaling an electric sign in full glow and leaped from his seat to bow Ylena and Rose into the machine. He shut the door after Hamilton, and again turned on his incandescent smile. "The Malecon, Senor?"

"Neptuno street first," Scott directed. He faced Ylena. "That's the pawnshop section, where all the rich people pawn their jewels and doodads when the sugar market plays them dirty. I'm going to dig out a bunk of jewelry for you."

In various shops they diligently unearthed, lifting things, pushing plunder aside, snooping. After many minutes, an hour possibly, Scott asked the girl, "What about these?" He was holding a fat lot of garnets—necklace, bracelet, earrings and ring.

"Oh, no, Scott. I'm sure they are too much."

"Nothing is too much for you—not even that 24-carat diamond in the Capitol building—besides," he assured her, "they'll practically be a gift when I get through."

He began to haggle lazily at first with a totally disinterested look on his face. As other customers drew nearer, he gradually crescendoed, until through various changes, he was bargaining with a frenzy as Latin as that of the storekeeper. The crowd grew still more, watching with intense interest. After a final spiel, Cuban shrugs, expostulations, followed by financial surrender, compliments to Scott and various beaming salutations, the garnets were Scott's. And then Ylena's. He dropped them into her cupped hands as casually as if tossing feed to her chickens.

"Hang the ring in your nose if you're afraid to wear a ring I've given you. But do wear the entire batch tonight. And that beautiful white dancing frock—we're lucky to be here between November and March. We can go to Sana-Souci."

Under the expert guidance of their chauffeur—and of Scott Hamilton himself, who often had been in Cuba—they started on a tour of contrasts. Sixteenth century ruins and decayed looking churches made a contrast to Americanized office buildings, modern hotels and the resplendent new Capitol. Narrow streets, the vendors' carts piled high with tropical fruits, vegetables, many colored fish, made a contrast to the wide, sweeping boulevards. And the plaster-cracked, low dwellings of the poor to the exclusive Vedado residential section, with its houses of stone, marble, colorful stucco, set amid extravagant gardens of flowers.

"Chamber of Commerce de luxe," Rose designated.

"Oh, but beautiful," the girl cried. "Still I prefer the 'Old Town' Spanish section. It made me feel like dancing a Carmen right there on the cobblestones."

"Let's go back and do it. I'll pass the hat for you—by the way, no one has said anything about my new Monte Christi Panama," Scott lamented.

Rose said evenly, "You were too proud."

"And why not? It cost over a hundred dollars." He turned as he heard Ylena gasp. "Some Panamas, my little lamb, cost as much as a thousand dollars."

She quickly recovered. "Well, you needn't try to pay for yours with my street dancing."

Scott Hamilton ignored her to say to the chauffeur, "Get over on the Fifth Avenue drive." He leaned back and informed the women with all the pomposity of a professional guide, "Three solid miles of flowers," then nudged them simultaneously. Paying no attention to the street, his eyes were wide, his smile was bright.

Rose trumpeted, "We'll all have plenty of flowers if you don't watch where you're going." Savagely she motioned him around.

The next couple of hours they dawdled away at the Havana Yacht club, sipping early drinks while they sat overlooking the clean white sands and the blue waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

As they drove home in the early dusk, along the Malecon, Ylena gazed with complete pleasure and said, "I'm trying to decide whether Havana is more beautiful in the twilight or in the early morning."

"Stick with me," Scott advised, "and you'll soon see it again in the early morning. Then you can make up your mind."

Ylena looked lovely that evening in the wasp-waisted, full-skirted chiffon dress and the full set of garnet jewelry. Of all the places they went, she liked best the cafe off the beaten path, where they dined, a small place, quiet and peaceful, redolent with native atmosphere. A tiny boy gave her a flower. All during dinner, and while they lingered over liqueurs in that soft fragrance of half-wilted flowers, coffee, liquor and strange foods, an old, old woman in ragged skirts and an exquisite head-shawl, played the guitar and sang, in a voice unbelievably good and strong.

In response to Scott's generous appreciation as they left the restaurant, she bowed again and again, and showered him with soft-reiterated smiling Spanish phrases.

"What did she say, Scott?" They had reached the street.

"Nothing much. The usual flowery raving of a well-tipped Latin."

"But what?" the girl persisted. "What, that could possibly make you blush so much?"

Scott paused before they reached their car and the perpetually grinning Pepe. "She bestowed a million blessings and a million prayers—she wished for much prosperity, much health and many children—to you and your angelic wife."

Today's Garden-Graph

The tomato hornworm is the most common and well-known insect of tomato plants. These caterpillars eat the leaves off a plant in a few days.

A tomato pest with a big appetite

As illustrated in the Garden-Graph, these fat green worms are from two to four inches long with a slender horn on the back end. The caterpillar is the same color as the foliage and is often difficult to detect.

In small gardens the worms can be picked off by hand or the plants can be sprayed with lead arsenate before the fruits set. Gardeners are reporting success with rotenone spray.

House plants that have been removed from their pots and set out in the garden for summer should be taken up and potted now. Prune the plants severely and then keep them outdoors until late September.

Watch for mildew on phloxes, fall asters, delphiniums and other susceptible perennials, all of which should be sprayed promptly with Bordeaux mixture at the first sign of this trouble.

Flower seeds, such as pansies, forget-me-nots, English daisies and violas may also be sown now for flowering with next spring's bulbs. Some of the perennial flower seeds such as those of hollyhocks, poppies and sweet Williams may also still be sown.

Among the vegetables, lettuce and radish seeds may be sown for a late crop and will do especially well in a cold frame if the soil is good.

All fertilization should stop but watering of all sorts of plants should continue as long as they are growing, even until the ground freezes, during dry spells.

STARS SAY—

For Wednesday, August 27

A MODERATE degree of success and satisfaction should mark this day, although there are openings for advancement, favor and preferential knocking at the door. These may be attended by temptations to do the wrong thing, or make hazardous decisions. While the mind will be clever and the wits swift and keen, yet certain obscurities or confusions may pull in unprofitable directions, causing unfavorable results. A tendency to romantic ideas, sentimental fancies or social glamor may be the defeating factor.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should be assured a year of good opportunity for success, advancement, promotion or tokens of preferment from superiors or those in power. An urge to grasp such advantage and to expand the field of action and ambition carefully developed may be encouraged, but the same may be imperiled by extravagance, over-enthusiasm, undue haste in forcing issues, or other unwise temptations, precipitating reversals or false moves. Sentimental, glamorous or romantic ideas may confuse and perplex, particularly where public or collective demands are involved.

A child born on this day should be versatile, resourceful, highly intellectual, attracting the support of its superiors and attaining success.

Dodgers, Cards Split Big Bill

One And One-Half Games Continue To Keep Teams Apart; Cincinnati Meets Brooklyn

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—After the several thousand words he hollered and whooped while his Brooklyn Dodgers split a doubleheader with St. Louis, Skipper Leo Durocher today managed to whisper that the National League pennant couldn't be won on a single day, anyway, and that, just as he had expected, the championship will be decided sometime between now and the season's end.

The Lip, loquacious as ever, explained:

"We couldn't have won nor lost the pennant yesterday, no matter if we had taken both games or blown them."

RED BIRD CAMP OPENS THURSDAY FOR OHIO YOUTHS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Details in connection with the annual baseball try-out camp of the Columbus Red Birds are virtually complete, and the number of inquiries indicates that an enrollment of aspirants will reach several hundred when the opening roll is called Thursday. With a group of well-known St. Louis Cardinal scouts on hand, boys from three states are slated to go through three days of running, throwing, batting and actual play in an effort to prove themselves worthy of consideration for careers in minor league baseball.

With such scouts as Frank Rickey, Charles "Pop" Kelchner, Marty Purtell, Walter Shannon and others on hand, boys who have possibilities of developing into a Johnny Mize, an Enos Slaughter, a Ray Sanders or a Jimmy Brown will be observed by men who started such famous figures in baseball.

There will be three days of intensive work, with a number of practice games on the books for Saturday. At the end of the camp boys who are considered ready to start careers in organized baseball will be given such opportunity.

Boys need not register in advance but are requested to report with uniforms and ready to play next Thursday. Boys from outside of Columbus are expected to make their own lodging arrangements, but there is no registration fee.

Manager Billy Southworth of the Cards tacitly agreed on that point, and asserted further that the Cardinals, now ready to return to their own back yard, "definitely can't be counted out."

A crowd of 39,107, barely below the season's tops, witnessed the Flatbush Flock score an 8 to 3 victory in the first game and throw the nightcap to the wind and the rain which threatened to wash it out after eight innings with the Cards ahead, 3 to 1.

Curt Davis handcuffed St. Louis with seven hits in the first contest. Six of the safeties were secured by Don Padgett and Johnny Mize. The Dodgers were rolling along toward a deadlock in the final when Pee Wee Reese's double miscue in the eighth helped the Cards break the 0-0 pitching duel between Brooklyn's Fred Fitzsimmons and St. Louis' Morten Cooper with a three-run assault.

The net result of the four-game series, a pair of doubleheaders that were split even—Stephen was that the flock remained a game and a half ahead, and that both clubs will carry their pennant quest "over the run of the season," as the Lip expressed it.

Brooklyn entertains Cincinnati and St. Louis goes against New York at the Polo Grounds tonight.

Elswhere in the National League yesterday, Cincinnati and New York halved a bargain bill, the Giants taking the first 7 to 4, and the Reds winning the final, 5 to 4, with a three-run rally in the eighth after both clubs were called by darkness.

Boston and Pittsburgh also split a pair. The Braves won the first 4 to 3, then the Pirates came through 6 to 1.

Only Chicago managed to gain a notch. The Cubs trounced the futility Phillies twice, 5 to 4 and 11 to 3, Dom Dalesandro batting in seven runs in the nightcap.

The status changed somewhat in the American circuit, Boston thrashed Cleveland, 9 to 4, and scrambled over the Indians into third place. Philadelphia tripped Detroit Tigers twice, 9-1 and 2-1, to move into sixth place ahead of the St. Louis Browns who were polished off, 3 to 0, by Washington and Dutch Leonard.

New York and Detroit were officially idle, but, if it is of any significance, the Yankees were bested, 2-1, by their Kansas City farm hands and a 21-year-old rookie named Milo Candini.

HARRY SHORT'S HORSE, JESSIE RECTOR, WINNER

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27 — A strong field of 16 will face the barrier in the $2,000 Ohio Pacing Derby, feature of today's harness racing program at the 91st annual Ohio State Fair. The purse is the largest of the meeting.

Other important stakes today include the $1000 2:20 pace and the $1,000 Director of Agriculture stakes for two-year olds.

Two Columbus owned horses won the feature races at yesterday's running before 6,500 fans. Harry Short's Jessie Rector, driven by Bob Plaxico, won the two-year-old pace, while C. A. Mitchell's Jack High won the 2:22 trot in three consecutive heats.

Frisky Direct, owned by Robert Solt, of Bucyrus, and driven by Trainer Bunny Sturgeon, raced to victory in two heats of the second division of the juvenile stakes. The Woodsman, owned by R. N. RED RUFFING, 37-YEAR-OLD NEW YORK YANKEE PITCHER STILL AT HIS PEAK IN EFFECTIVENESS

HE JUST MISSED A NO-HIT SHUTOUT AGAINST THE WHITE SOX RECENTLY, GIVING UP HIS FIRST HIT IN THE EIGHTH INNING

NEW YORK, Aug. 27—Pudgy Gus Lesnevich, Cliffside, N. J., is the new light-heavyweight champion of the universe—and of Announcer Harry Balogh's world in particular this morning—but he'll have to prove his right to the title all over again on November 14.

The blonde Russian body puncher won the 175-pound crown on a split decision over Tami Mauriello, 21-year-old Bronx kid, last night but the verdict was so unpopular Promoter Mike Jacobs promptly got the boys to agree to an encore.

The finish of a sporadic fight saw Announcer Balogh pull a prize boner which caused the greatest confusion seen here in many moons. Mauriello, after trailing early and surviving a nine count in the second round, had closed fast and apparently had won the fight.

Most of the crowd thought so and when Balogh announced "the winner and new light-heavyweight champion of the world" the mob, which was all for Tami, let up a long scream. Tami rushed across the ring and was congratulated by Lesnevich.

Balogh roared for order, a look of great pain spreading across his highly manicured kisser. The crowd wouldn't let up. Tami stood in the center of the ring, a big smile on his battered and sweating face and posed with his laughing manager and handlers for the photos.

"Will you please allow me to finish," screamed Balogh. Something was up and finally the crowd quieted down. Then Harry the magnificent said "the winner and new light-heavyweight champion of the world is Gus Lesnevich"—and the panic was on.

Several gamblers who had paid off on Mauriello, an 8-5 underdog, started hollering for their customers; Tami almost flopped on his face and his manager, Lefty Remini, looked like he was going to cry. The crowd made several menacing gestures in the direction of the ring but fortunately that was all.

A look at the scorecards showed that Judges Bill Healy and John Potter gave it to Lesnevich. The former scored it 8 and 7; Potter had it eight for Gus, six for Tami and called one even. Referee Eddie Joseph tabbed it ten for Mauriello and five for Gus.

This writer had Tami on top eight rounds to six with one even. Tami's manager, Lefty Remini, than their mates collected, but lost, nevertheless.

LEADING PITCHERS
AMERICAN LEAGUE — Ruffing, New York 14-6; Gomez, New York, 12-4; Feller, Cleveland, 21-11. NATIONAL — Krist, St. Louis 9-0; Riddle, Cincinnati 13-2; White, St. Louis 16-4.

HEROES AND GOATS
HEROES—Sam Chapman, who clouted his 26th homer of the season with the bases loaded for Philadelphia's A's against Detroit; Irving Hadley, whose rescue hurling helped the A's trounce the Tigers in the nightcap of their doubleheader; Don Dalesandro, who homered with the bases loaded and rapped in seven of 11 runs to help the Chicago Cubs beat Philadelphia; Heber Newsome, Red Sox pitcher who helped win his own game against Cleveland with a three-run double; Curt Davis, who felled St. Louis as Brooklyn won the first game against the Cards; Morton Cooper, Cardinal youngster who flipped them to a nightcap triumph.

GOATS—Pee Wee Reese, whose two errors in the ninth, paved the way for St. Louis to beat Brooklyn; Roy Weatherly, Cleveland outfielder whose three errors didn't help the Tribe much against Boston; George Caster and Fred Ostermueller, Browns pitchers, who gave up fewer hits to Washington than their mates collected, but lost, nevertheless.

VANDY TO FACE DODGERS UNDER LIGHTS TONIGHT

BROOKLYN, Aug. 27—The Cincinnati Reds moved over to Brooklyn today for a night game with the league-leading Dodgers tonight and a chance to either make or break themselves.

The Reds, currently in third-place eight and one-half games away from the Dodgers, could get into a contending position by sweeping a series with Brooklyn.

The Reds lost a chance to make up some ground while the Dodgers and Cardinals were splitting a double bill yesterday. The New York Giants belted Bucky Walters out in six innings of the opener of a double bill to win 7 to 4 but the Redlegs came back to take the nightcap, 5 to 4, in eight innings. The second game was halted by darkness.

Manager Bill McKechnie indicated he would send Johnny Vander Meer to the mound tonight. Kirby Higbe was to hurl for the league-leaders.

BIRDIES DIVIDE PAIR; BIG JOHN WINS AND LOSES

By International News Service
The Toledo Mudhens today kept alive their hopes of landing in the American Association's first division and consequently the play-offs for the right to play in the little world series.

Although blanked, 4 to 0, in the opener of a double bill with the St. Paul Saints by right-hander Bill Swift, the Toledoans came back in the nightcap to take a 4 to 2 decision and thus remain two games out of fourth place. In the nightcap, the Mud Hens rallied in the eighth frame, scoring three runs to come from behind.

The league-leading Columbus Red Birds, meanwhile, were splitting a double bill with Minneapolis. Columbus took the opener, 8 to 0, behind the three-hit pitching of Johnny Grodzicki. The Millers scored three times in the last inning of the five-frame nightcap off the same Grodzicki to take that contest, 6 to 3. Grodzicki was charged with the loss.

In the other league tilt, last-place Milwaukee sent second-place Louisville spinning by a 9 to 3 count. Ray Campbell, although touched for 12 hits and five walks, bore down in the pinches to gain the decision for the Brewers.

GOODMAN MEETS TEXAN IN FIRST TEST FOR TITLE

OMAHA, Neb., August 27 — Former Champion Johnny Goodman, whom Nebraskans claim "can't be beat in his own backyard" — the Omaha field club — teed off today against Bob Riegl of Houston, the ex-Texas State champion, as match play began in the 45th National Amateur Golf tournament.

Riegl just made the championship flight of 64 participants, tying with nine others for the last seven places in the 36-hole qualifying round. In the one-hole playoff, the Texan was one of the seven to escape elimination, and he promised to "upset" Goodman in the first round — just like Goodman scored his historic first round win over Bobby Jones in the National Amateur at Pebble Beach, Cal., in 1929. But the odds were against Riegl.

Sharing the spotlight with the Goodman-Riegl match in the initial round were these 18-hole duels:

Medalist Stewart M. "Skip" Alexander of Burlington, N. C., vs. Johnny Fischer of Cincinnati, the amateur king of 1936.

Marvin "Bud" Ward of Spokane, Wash., the 1939 champion, vs. Alex Welsh of Rockford, Ill.

Defending Champion Dick Chapman of New York and Camp Maxwell, Ala., vs. Louis Jennings of Portland, Ore.

Johnny Burke of Chicago, 1938 National intercollegiate champion and runner-up to Alexander for medalist honors, vs. Bob Cochran of St. Louis.

98,200 TO SEE BEARS, COLLEGE ALL-STARS VIE

Both Squads In Splendid Condition For Game Thursday Night

CHICAGO, Aug. 27—Chicago's greatest sports crowd in more than ten years—98,200—will witness the eighth annual all-star football game in Soldier Field tomorrow night between a fan-picked squad of college stars and the Chicago Bears, national professional grid champions.

The game was a sellout several days ago with 93,200 tickets having been sold, but in addition to the paying customers 5,000 soldiers and sailors of the Sixth Corps Areas will see the game.

Despite the preponderance of All-American talent on the college team, the Bears ruled today as 4 to 1 favorites. Football fans cannot forget that this Bear team is the same one that smashed the Washington Redskins 73 to 0 to cop the National League title last year.

Both squads were reported in good condition for the classic. Sid Luckman, the Bears' ace passer and quarterback, had a slight knee injury, but will start. On the college squad, only Marion Pugh, Texas Aggie quarterback, was ailing. He had a badly swollen elbow but may see limited action.

NUMEROUS OHIO GRADUATES WIN TEACHING JOBS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Graduates of Ohio State University's department of physical education are having no trouble in finding employment in their chosen field.

Out of 25 men graduated in June, 24 are either employed or will be when the public schools open next month, and the one remaining graduate is expecting no difficulty in finding a place. The list of graduates includes the names of several well known Ohio State athletes.

Six of the men are serving as petty officers in the United States Navy, as part of Gene Tunney's recreation division. They are Robert Johnson, John Higgins, Elwood Woodling, and Brud Cleveland, all former Buckeye swimming stars; Vic Marino, ex-griddier, and Myron Overholt. Another graduate in the service is Mike Milkovitch, recreation officer attached to the Station Hospital at Fort Knox, Ky.

Three of the graduates will report to colleges this fall. Jimmy Langhurst, last year's football captain, goes to Connecticut Wesleyan as assistant to Wesley Fesler, another former Buckeye star. Robert Kretschmar goes to Hanover College in Indiana, and Richard Clark will be employed by Oberlin College.

Two of the physical education majors will enter YMCA work. Wade McBride at Columbus, and Leonard Kjellman, at Fostoria.

However, the majority of the group will coach and teach physical education in Ohio high schools. These men, and the schools with

High Gridders Resting After First Scrimmage

Circleville High graders were going through a heavy and lengthy signal drill Wednesday while several athletes were resting up from a pounding taken at Tuesday's practice when contact was permitted for the first time.

Coach Roy Black intended to let up a little after Tuesday's workout, which was not so pleasing to the Tiger mentor. Plays failed to work, and several of the varsity athletes showed lack of edge of where they ought to be at the proper time.

The long scrimmage drill brought out several bright points, though, several younger athletes showing that they must be given consideration before this year's varsity crew is definitely set. The Tigers open their season on the local field September 19 with West Jefferson as the opponent.

TWO JOIN GRIDDERS

PRINCETON, N. J., Aug. 27—Pointing toward their exhibition duel with the Chicago Bears at Ebbets Field September 9, the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Professional Football League looked to assistance from a pair of recruits. Granville Harrison, former Mississippi State end, and Bill Brown, ex-Texas Tech back, joined the squad yesterday.

AKRON STAR SHOOTING FINE GOLF IN OHIO PGA

CINCINNATI, Aug. 27 — Herman Keiser, long-hitting golf professional from the Akron Firestone Club, held the center of the stage as Ohio's annual P.G.A. tournament moved in the final 36 holes of the 72-hole grind. Shooting phenomenal golf, Keiser ripped par to ribbons at Losantville Country Club to turn in a sensational 69-68-137 for the first half of the tourney and assume a four stroke lead over the field.

Byron Nelson, of Toledo Inverness, the defending champ, and Maurice McCarthy, of Cincinnati, were in second place and within striking distance with 141.

Billy Burke, of Cleveland, fired a 77 in his first round, then withdrew after four holes of the second setto with a blistered heel.

TREASURY LISTS HUGE INCREASES IN MANY ITEMS

Senate Finance Committee May Boost House Bill By 800 Millions

from 10 to 65 cents a gallon, $10,800,000, adopted.

Automobiles, seven to 15 percent; trucks, buses, five to 10 percent; parts, accessories, five to 10 percent, $187,200,000.

Joint returns, with modification for earned income, $258,000,000, rejected.

Limit percentage depletion for oil to cost of depletion or value as of March 1, 1913, $86,000,000, to be acted on.

Cigarettes increase $3.25 to $4.00 a thousand, $112,800,000.

In addition treasury experts are to submit new rates on excess profits, higher than those adopted in the House, to yield perhaps $300,000,000 more.

There is a possibility, members said, that some new taxes may be approved by the committee and some of the excise taxes contained in the House bill may be eliminated. A determined fight is to be made to eliminate the $5 annual automobile use tax.

After accepting the general principle of the House excess profits tax, the committee still had to act on rates and some special rules. A squabble ensued over the House 10 percent special income tax on corporations which show an increased profit, but do not earn enough to pay excess profits.

Steel Mills Eyed

This provision is designed to hit such firms as steel companies which had operated at virtually no profit before the defense boom, and now enjoy earnings although not in the excess profits tax class. The tax is fought on the ground that it penalizes many struggling corporations, which just now are getting out of the "red" and into the profit class.

The committee approved a boost to 20 percent in the tax on safety deposit boxes. Present tax is 11 percent.

It also adopted these rates on still wines: not over 14 percent alcohol, 10 cents per gallon; 14 to 21 percent alcohol, 35 cents; 21 to 24 percent alcohol, 65 cents. Rates on sparkling wines were boosted, and brandy was taxed at $4 a gallon, the same as liquor generally. The committee approved House increased tax rates on tires and tubes and repeal of practically all exemptions from the admissions tax, except for state and county fairs.

MOTHER, THREE CHILDREN DEAD

found on the first floor which the Moreys rented in the three-story frame house. The nude bodies of the children lay on the floor. In a nearby room on an army cot was the body of the wife and mother, clad in a house coat.

Neighbors who live above the small apartment said they heard screams shortly before dawn. The children's parents were said by neighbors to have been involved in frequent quarrels over Morey's drinking habits.

Poverty had laid its cold hand on the Morey home. The four rooms were devoid of rugs, practically barren of furniture. The children, apparently, had slept on the floor.

A complete picture of the sequence of events preceding the tragedy was still being sought by police. They learned, however, that yesterday when the postman brought a relief check to the home the four children were playing on the floor.

Husband Took Check

Their grandmother sat in a rocking chair as Morey's wife tore open the envelope. The check fluttered out and the ex-patrolman snatched it, put on his hat and went out. A short time later the grandmother left.

At the hospital, Morey told this story:

"I got home at 1:30 a. m. I went to sleep with my wife. Our baby, Paul, was between us.

"I woke about 5 or 5:30 when I felt a blow on my head. It stunned me. As I got off the bed I fell to the floor.

"My wife was not in bed. I started to look for her. Then I saw Junior walking, blood all over him. Next I saw my wife at the bedroom door. I saw her cut her throat with a knife.

"I went to call for help and the police came soon."

On a dilapidated dresser in the bedroom police found the note, scrawled in a woman's hand on a piece of writing paper. It said, in part:

"This is the best way out. Don't touch anything. We are all suffering from a disease."

Police planned further questioning of Morey as soon as he had recovered sufficiently from his injuries which were not expected to prove serious.

"From every indication," said Assistant District Attorney Edward Heffernan, "it looks like suicide in which the mother cut her own throat after killing her children."

TRAILERS DOT COUNTRY

CHICAGO—New trailer populations springing up in defense industry and army camp areas which are short of housing accommodations are emphasizing the trailer regulation problem for local and state governments, a survey of the American Municipal Association showed recently.

While trailer dwellers have not increased at the rate once predicted, approximately 250,000 houses on wheels are now in use, and there are about 2,000 trailer "settlements" in the country, according to the association.

'CHUTING IS NEWEST SPORT

DETROIT—Youthful Detroiters have taken to the latest of practical sports—parachuting. The possible need of skilled parachutists in national defense is not lost sight of."

AFL WINS RIGHT RITES WILL BE TO REPRESENT THURSDAY FOR DETROIT'S DSR MISHAP VICTIM

DETROIT, Aug. 27—Retaining the privileges it has held for 40 years, the A. F. of L. today defeated the CIO 3,076 to 1,925 in an election held to determine which union should have exclusive collective bargaining rights in the Department of Street Railways. The election was conducted by the city election commission.

The election, which lasted for 24 hours, was a point in the agreement which settled the five day strike the A. F. of L. conducted against the DSR last week. The A. F. of L. had held the bargaining rights for 40 years previously and it was only recently the CIO attempted to make inroads in the railway department.

ities, telling of an incessant and gigantic battle along the "whole front."

An interesting development in the Iranian campaign was the British announcement that Germans and Italians were among those taken prisoner when the British occupied Bandar Shapur, on the Persian Gulf. But the announcement did not say whether the Germans and Italians were combatants.

Russian cossack troops striking down on either side of the Caspian Sea announced occupation of Tabriz and Ardabil, important transportation centers.

The British said Indian and other forces have taken a huge pocket 40 or more miles deep in the oil section between Khanaquin and Khorramshahr, east of the Iraq frontier. The whole area around Bandar Shapur and Abadan in the south has been mopped up and the British-Indian forces are moving on northward.

Turkey Menaced

The Turkish situation also grew more acute. Reports from Istanbul received in Moscow said four more German divisions have arrived on the border between axis-controlled Greece, and Turkey.

The Far Eastern crisis was heightened by still other developments.

Possibility was seen in Washington that American military brains may be used to help the war strategy of both China and Russia in their respective struggles against axis aggression.

This possibility arose from the White House announcement concerning the forthcoming dispatch of American military missions to China and Russia and to make recommendations regarding types and quantities of American war aid needed by those countries.

Meanwhile, the British and Russian invasion of Iran apparently was progressing at the prescribed pace. A Simla communique said British and Indian troops are "advancing methodically" into western and southwestern Iran and Russia announced Soviet troops had captured the northern Iranian communications center of Tabriz. An Iranian communique, however, claimed the invaders had been held back at "some points."

policy making powers over the whole defense program.

That is, this Board, consisting of Vice President Wallace, Secretaries Stimson, Knox and Morgenthau, OPM Chiefs Knudsen and Hillman, and OPACS Director Henderson, would be a sort of general staff of defense production.

The board would fix policies on all production issues and OPM, OPACS, the Army, Navy and various other agencies connected with the defense program would put them into effect in their particular fields.

Also, to further integrate OPM and OPACS in order to obtain smoother cooperative functioning between them, the civilian supply part of OPACS would be made an OPM division. Henderson would continue to be head as he does now as part of OPACS, but he would do so as an OPM official under Knudsen and Hillman.

This would give him a dual role. On one hand he would be head of an independent agency controlling prices, and on the other an OPM divisional chief in charge of civilian supply. In both capacities he would have a voice in all priority questions as a member of the seven-man policy board. In turn, its priority decisions would be enforced by the priorities division of OPM.

Whether this plan becomes operative depends on the President. He is still studying it and it may undergo more changes before he acts.

CIVIL DEFENSE TROUBLES

Real reason for that mysterious visit to the White House of Dean James Landis, of Harvard Law School and former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, was to try to persuade him to become second man to Mayor LaGuardia as Civil Defense Administrator.

With LaGuardia at his Washington desk only one or two days a week, civil defense preparations have been progressing at a limping pace. This has caused considerable undercover grumbling and in an effort to meet the criticism, LaGuardia conceived the idea of making Landis his right-hand lieutenant.

Landis already is regional director of civil defense in New England. But he declined subbing for LaGuardia in Washington. Landis' excuse was that he couldn't leave certain special work he is doing.

Failing to persuade Landis himself, LaGuardia hustled him over to the White House in the hope that Roosevelt would have better luck. But Landis refused to be moved.

The same day, also undisclosed, there was another eruption in LaGuardia's headquarters' staff. Russell Davenport, Willkie brain-truster in last year's campaign, threw up the sponge and walked out. He is the fourth LaGuardia assistant to depart.

Davenport was brought to Washington to work on plans for a morale campaign. After several weeks of doing nothing, during which time LaGuardia was in town twice, Davenport told him he saw no reason for staying any longer and left.

MORE DEFENSE CHANGES

The plan formulated by White House advisers to solve the long dispute between OPM and ORACS over priorities control by setting up a new seven-man Board has been enlarged.

In its latest form the proposal would also give this Board general policy making powers over the whole defense program.

That is, this Board, consisting of Vice President Wallace, Secretaries Stimson, Knox and Morgenthau, OPM Chiefs Knudsen and Hillman, and OPACS Director Henderson, would be a sort of general staff of defense production.

The board would fix policies on all production issues and OPM, OPACS, the Army, Navy and various other agencies connected with the defense program would put them into effect in their particular fields.

Also, to further integrate OPM and OPACS in order to obtain smoother cooperative functioning between them, the civilian supply part of OPACS would be made an OPM division. Henderson would continue to be head as he does now as part of OPACS, but he would do so as an OPM official under Knudsen and Hillman.

This would give him a dual role. On one hand he would be head of an independent agency controlling prices, and on the other an OPM divisional chief in charge of civilian supply. In both capacities he would have a voice in all priority questions as a member of the seven-man policy board. In turn, its priority decisions would be enforced by the priorities division of OPM.

Whether this plan becomes operative depends on the President. He is still studying it and it may undergo more changes before he acts.

OKLAHOMA CITY REFUSES LINDY PERMIT TO HALL

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Aug. 27—The Oklahoma City chapter of the America First committee today went forward with plans to have Charles A. Lindbergh speak "in a sandlot or cow pasture" if necessary at the committee's rally scheduled for Friday night.

The committee was refused permission by the city council to hold the rally in the municipal auditorium, but Herbert K. Hyde, local chairman, insisted the meeting would be held anyway. It was Hyde who said Lindbergh would speak in a sandlot or cow pasture if he had to, but the chairman added several other meeting places already had been offered.

Meantime, a storm brewed over the council's action in revoking a lease granted for the auditorium for Friday's gathering. A council spokesman said more than 250 persons had appeared before the council to protest against Lindbergh's appearance in the auditorium. He added the council had not known when it made the hall available to the America First group, that Lindbergh was to speak.

One councilman, A. P. Van Meter, denied that the council was interfering with freedom of speech.

"Lindbergh," he said, "can go out on the street corner and talk until he gets tired. We just don't want him in our public buildings."

YOUTH WILLING TO ENTER ARMY AFTER BALKING

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27—Because he changed his mind and promised to wear an army uniform, Private Roger M. Hostetler, 23, of near Urbana, was free today of charges of failing to obey orders of a superior officer.

Hostetler, Fifth Corps officials said, will be sent to the Medical Replacement training center at Camp Lee, Virginia, for non-combatant duty.

The Champaign County youth refused to don a uniform two weeks ago, claiming he was a conscientious objector to military training. He had been confined to the guard house at Fort Hayes.

The army announcement said Hostetler was the first of 79,000 trainees from the Fifth Corps area to refuse to wear the uniform.

Hostetler's local draft board classified him in 1-A, and after his appeal was denied, he was sent to Fort Hayes for induction. The appeal board in its decision contended that he was "not a conscientious objector in the strict contemplation of the law," and that "until passage of the selective service act he was not a member of a church to which conscientious objection is part of the creed."

Ohio State Fair Setting Record For Attendance

More Than 40,000 Go Through Gates On
Fourth Day; Racing Attracts Many;
Governor, Family Win Attention

With the spotlight of interest swinging to the race-track, Ohio's 91st State Fair swung into its fifth day Wednesday with fair officials predicting flatly that all attendance records for the week would be smashed before the fair closes Friday night.

Despite rain at noon and threatening skies throughout the day, yesterday's paid attendance was 40,071, a gain of 1,456 over the figure for the Tuesday of 1940. Coupled with the 30,312 gain of the first three days, it led Fair Manager Win Kinnan to declare:

"This is the biggest fair we ever had. Our attendance figures will be smashed without a doubt."

Highlight on Wednesday's program was the $2,000, 2:15 Ohio Pacing derby, richest event on the five-day harness racing program. In addition, racing fans will witness the Director of Agriculture's stake, a $1,000 event for two-year-old trotters and the $1,000, 2:20 pace, in addition to the lesser 2:14 trot.

Honored on the day's fair-wide program were Director of Agriculture John T. Brown, Women's Federated Clubs, the Ohio Junior Chamber of Commerce, Garden clubs, and the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation.

However, a hole in the center of the machinery field still held the attention of the younger fairgoers, for it was there that Governor Bricker turned the first spadeful of earth for the new, $350,000 junior fair building, designed to provide living quarters for 1,600 young exhibitors at future fairs.

Those who attended the groundbreaking ceremonies conceded they had seen everything when the governor or, who always is immaculately dressed, took off his coat and hat, rolled up his sleeves, and turned the spadeful of dirt with the skill of an expert gardener. It was the governor's first public appearance without a suit-coat, his aides admitted.

Spade Inscribed
The spade he used was later inscribed by the chief executive: "To the Ohio Junior Fair—to the boys and girls of Ohio, Good Luck and Prosperity. Sincerely, John W. Bricker." It will be enshrined in the new building, which the governor promised would be ready for use next year—"barring our possible inability to get materials due to the priorities of the national defense program."

The governor's 11-year-old son, Jackie, was a somewhat bored spectator of the proceedings. He confided later to a reporter that he would much rather go on the rides of the midway or fish in the conservation commission's lagoon, where children are allowed to fish for 45 minutes or until they catch three fish.

Scheduled for judging today were Merinos, Oxford Downs, Hampshire Downs and Corriedales in the sheep barn; shorthorns and guernseys in the coliseum and poland chinas and hampshires in the swine barn. Percheron horse judging also will be in the coliseum.

Jay Farcur, 10-year-old Belgian stallion owned by Kenfleur Farms of H. C. Horneman, Danville, Ill., nosed out his two-year-old son of Kenfleur's Jay Farcur, owned by Ohio State University, to win the grand championship yesterday. It marked his third straight winning of the title. Reserve senior champion and ing contest are scheduled for Friday morning.

Swine—Lisle Farms Co., Lisle, Ill., senior champion Chester White boar; Circle Oak Farms, Piketon, O., grand champion Chester White boar; Lisle Farms Co., grand champion Chester White sow and senior champion Chester White sow.

The Anglo-Russian invasion of Iran was dictated by military strategy rather than Nazi activity in that country, Mohammed Schayesteh, Iranian minister to the United States, told reporters in the state department in Washington before a conference with Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles.

BILL TO GOVERN PRICE PAID FOR SMOKES IS LAW

COLUMBUS, Aug. 27 — The Ward bill to ban use of cigarettes as loss leaders by Ohio merchants and thereby boost the price 1 to 2 cents a package went into effect today.

The measure, which a Toledo drug company has threatened to test in the courts, was introduced in the state senate last winter by Sen. Grant T. Ward (R) of Columbus. It passed the upper house March 5 by a 36 to 0 vote. The lower house voted 108 to 6 for it on May 13.

Briefly, the bill is intended to prevent sale of cigarettes at cut or less than cost prices in order to pull customers into stores where other attractively displayed merchandise marked for handsome profit will make the unwary pop-eyed enough to use some of their folding money for more than tobacco.

Its sponsors hope to make it work by requiring that all cigarettes be sold at no less than cost plus 6 percent.

Some merchants contend that it will force the price up two cents a package.

However, some stores that have been selling cigarettes at 14 cents contend they can continue to do so and still more say they will be able to continue selling at 15 cents. Actually, a large percentage of cigarettes being sold in the state have been bringing 17 cents for some time because they are marketed by machine, and three cents change is returned to the customer with the package.

Many dealers feel that if state and federal taxes are increased the price of cigarettes will go to the point where the smokers will cut down for economy's sake and both sales and tax revenue will fall.
